Farmer Of Year Thinks Consumers Should Pay Less

Eastern Milk Producers field representative, John DeLeeuw, center, congratulates Chuck and Shelley Walker at their farm home at Geneva, New York. The Walkers will be honored as the top quality producers during the co-op's annual meeting October 1 in Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, NY — A dairy farmer who will be honored here on October 1 as Farmer of the Year said the thing that frustrates him most about the lower price he's getting for his milk is that the cost hasn't gone down for consumers.

"I don't think so many farmers would be nearly as upset if consumers weren't paying as much as they are in the stores," said Chuck Walker of Geneva, N.Y.

"If prices were down for consumers, then maybe more milk would be sold," said his wife, Shelley.

The couple runs a 140-acre farm in Geneva, growing mostly corn and alfalfa, and milking 40 Holstein cows that each average 18,000 pounds of milk a year. That means the Walker farm has an annual production of nearly three quarters of a million pounds of milk.

The Walkers will share the spotlight when Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative honors the couple as its number one quality producer during the co-op's annual meeting on October 1 at the Sheraton University Inn in Syracuse.

In announceing the Farmer of the Year Award, Eastern president Lewis Gardner said that dairy farmers such as the Walkers have been coping with as much as 30 percent reduction in income this year because of an "unprecedented rapid decline" in the price they receive.

"Nowhere in the history of dairy farming that I can remember has the farm price fallen so far, so

Expert Says Microbes More Harmful In Food Than Chemicals

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.)—According to a Penn State microbiologist, the way consumers perceive food safety turns out to be almost opposite to what food experts consider the problem. Dr.Steve Knabel, assistant professor, department of food services, told the monthly Ag Issues Forum here Thursday morning that while experts consider microbial organisms to be the big problem in food safety because sickness and even death can occur from mishandled food, the consumer perceives chemicals and pesticides to be the major concern even though very few people, if any, get sick or die from these factors in food.

But perceptions become reality, and Knabel said the consumer needs to be engaged in dialogue so information can be given about the real problems of handling food.

"We need to inform consumers with hazard analysis of the critical control points in the food system," Knable said. "Ninety-five percent of all food-born outbreaks are due to improperly handled food in the market and restaurant services and in the home. These problem areas need to be corrected with educational programs to prevent this problem. They need to keep things clean. And food should not be held too long, and it should be cooked at the right temperatures.

Consumers are afraid of anything that is potentially catastrophic or anything they can't control," Knable said. "So they fear chemicals and pesticides. But bacteria that has been around a long time is not perceived to be catastrophic. And people have control over their food preparation procedures. So they don't think bacteria are really a problem.

"If you are going to have outrage about how food is handled, have it against microbial problems that cause harm and not chemical problems that cause very few problems," Knabel said.

Fall harvesting is underway with farmers in many areas of the state experiencing crop shortages because of the drought. These farmers will have used all their feed in storage by mid-winter and will then face huge feed bills to keep their dairy and livestock operations going. In the photo, Harold Fritz, harvests silo corn that is short but has reasonably good ears considering the dry weather. The photo was taken late Monday afternoon along Millport Road, between Lampeter Road and Strasburg Pike in Lancaster County. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

Trucklot buying interest was limited. Boneless skinless breasts were fully adequate for the light and cautious buyer. Whole breasts increased in availability, particularly from nearby shippers of yellow where the bulk of recent trades were noted without premiums; supplies of white were less freely available but adequate. Leg items were fully adequate with leg quarters freely trading at lower trending prices. Wings remained in closest balance and moved well at current levels. Giblets were generally steady.

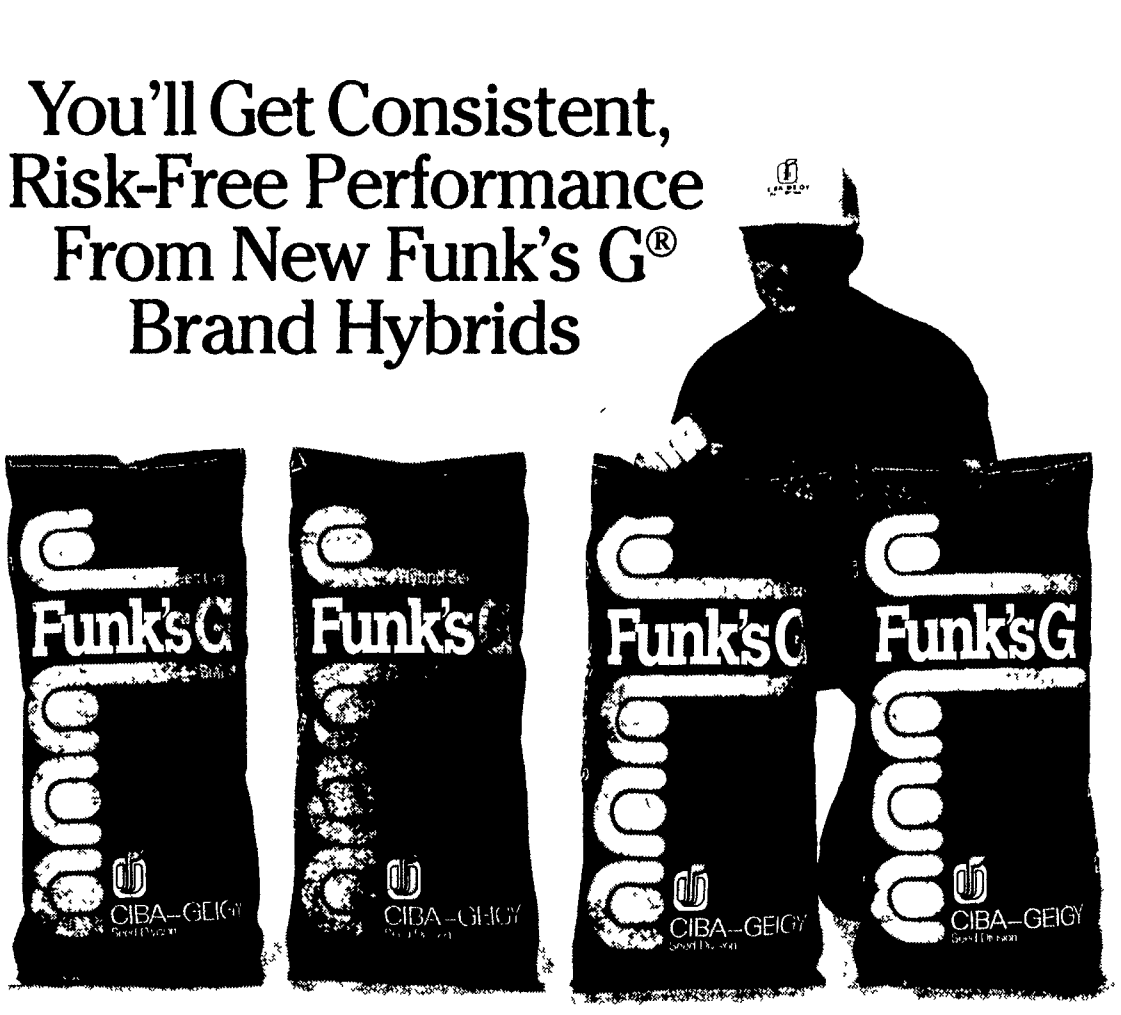
You'll Get Consistent, Risk-Free Performance From New Funk's G® Brand Hybrids



4393 105 Days
4472 110 Days
4530 113 Days
4624 118 Days

New Funk's G brand hybrids deliver consistent performance even under the stress of heat, drought, marginal soils or disease pressures. So you'll get virtually risk-free performance in good years — and in bad years.

Backed by CIBA-GEIGY research

You see, these hybrids are backed by nine years of CIBA-GEIGY Seed Division research. With local testing in growing conditions just like yours. That kind of research produces hybrids capable of standing up to anything mother nature has to offer. Hybrids that maximize your profit potential, while minimizing your risks.

Get complete performance

Plus, you get performance across the board. With big yields. But with 95% or better standability... 25% or less moisture... and intactness ratings under four. And you get all that in the maturity groups you need to spread your risks even more.

Limit your risks

Get risk-free performance on your farm today by calling Hoffman Seeds, Inc. You'll enjoy the peace of mind that comes from planting these new Funk's G brand hybrids.

Ask the Old Farmer: In Maine you hear of the wind "backing in" and "canting around " Could you explain? A B, N H

"Backing" means against the sun, from the east, by way of a northerly quarter, to the west "Hauling" or "canting" was the reverse When the wind backened, good weather would not last, fair weather if it hauled

Home Hints Clean parchment window shades with wallpaper cleaner

OPINION

Save A Life

Add silo gas and silo fires to a list of calamities likely to compound livestock farmers' troubles in a drought year like we have now. Such occurrences are likely throughout our circulation area.

Public health spokespersons, along with farm safety specialists for the Cooperative Extension Service at land-grant Universities, agree that extra precautions should be taken to avoid human tragedies.

According to Stephanie Leonard from the Institute of Agricultural Medicine and Occupational Health at the University of Iowa, several kinds of nitrous fumes, or silo gas, can be formed in silos during early stages of the ensiling process. All have a disagreeable odor.

Their colors range from red through orange to dark brown. Since they are heavier than air, they drop to the ground or roll along the floor like water and settle in low spots. Adjacent feed rooms and stable areas in barns can become death traps.

Thomas Bean, Ohio State, says farmers should be particularly careful about silo gas in a drought year. Livestock are as much in danger as the farm family. Dead flies, rodents, cats or birds in the silo or surrounding area should be taken as danger signs.

Silo fires, unlike hay bale fires, result when the moisture content is low. Air leaking into the silo helps fuel the fire. If the forage is too dry, heat cannot be dissipated fast enough, and the internal temperature rises until spontaneous combustion occurs. This process is called pyrolysis.

David Baker, farm safety specialist at the University of Missouri, says that as pyrolysis continues, oxygen within the silage feeds the smoldering fire. If the surrounding silage cannot support combustion, the fire may die, leaving a charred cavity. More frequently, the fire will spread slowly until it reaches the surface by burning through combustible materials.

It's important that you make sure the material put into the silo has enough moisture for the ensiling process. And whenever you work around the silo, run the forage blower for a while before entering the silo area. The life you save may be a family member's.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Pick Up Farm Show Premium List

The "1992 Pennsylvania State Farm Show Premium List" is now available at Pennsylvania county cooperative extension offices.

If you are planning to exhibit at Farm Show, you need to pick up your premium list right away.

There have been several changes for the 1992 show. First, the show will run from Saturday, January 11 to Thursday, January 16, 1992. Second, the scoring for several classes, especially eggs, have changed. Third, with the change in dates, entry deadlines have changed.

With a lot of closing dates occurring in early November, you need to be thinking about making your entries now. Remember, if you are showing poultry or livestock, certain health rules and health papers are required. These take time to process. Read health requirements now and take the necessary steps to protect your animal's health and those of other exhibitors.

To Inspect Crop Damage By Deer

The Pennsylvania Game Commission has a program to help farmers deal with the large deer population in many areas of the state.

The Deer "Hotspot" Program, as it is commonly referred to, will open those farms with a deer problem for a special hunt.

The Pennsylvania Farmers Association estimates that deer destroy $34.6 million worth of crops on Pennsylvania farms last year. If you have a problem with too many deer on your farm, contact the Pennsylvania Game Commission before October 1 for information about this program.

To Be Cautious About Heated, Uncured Silage

Feeding cows uncured, heated silage may reduce dry matter intake, milk production, and fat tests.

These problems are harder to avoid when you are working with one silo. However, there are some things that may be done to minimize risk.

- Temporarily switch the herd to a hay feeding program.
- Have a small supply of cured silage to feed for about a month while the silo is being filled and the silage is curing. This may be in the form of a stack or bag or an extra silo. If you do not have an opportunity to create a pile before this year's main silo filling season for this year's use, then consider making one this year that you may use next year.

To Attend The Northeast Poultry Trade Show

Do not forget to attend the Northeast Poultry Trade Show, September 25 and 26, at the Lancaster Host.

The exhibit hall is open each day from noon to 5 p.m. Admission to the exhibit area is free. Come and see the latest in poultry equipment and services.

Editor:

Sorry to be so late with a thank you to you and your staff for our Dairy of Distinction Award. We are busy getting our farm ready for a county tour stop and there just aren't enough hours in the day.

We are deeply honored to have been chosen for this award. We appreciate the coverage you have given us, the reception at Ag Progress Days and especially the picture. It is beautiful and something we will always treasure.

Thanks again - we will continue to strive to keep our farm looking as good as possible.

WE ALSO ARE HUMAN!
September 22, 1991

Background Scripture: Acts 14.

Devotional Reading: Romans 5:1-11.

No one could ever say that Paul and Barnabas were ignored wherever they went. When they presented the Good News of Jesus Christ it appears that people either were for them or against them. In Acts 14, we are told that at Iconium Paul and Barnabas spoke "boldly for the Lord" and they also performed "signs and wonders" (14:3). Yet, despite all that, the writer of Acts reports: "...the people of the city were divided; some sided with the Jews, and some with the apostles."

Apparently the opposition became strong enough — threats to stone them — that Paul and Barnabas fled to Lystra, where it seems the people are much more favorably disposed toward them. One reason: Paul performs a healing on a man who had been crippled from birth. This dramatic event unleashes a rush of popular acclaim, the people of Lystra proclaiming: "The gods have come down to us in the like- ness of men!" (14:11).

TORN GARMENTS!

The people of Lystra are largely of Greek background, so they assume that Paul and Barnabas are two of their Greek deities, Zeus and Hermes. You may wonder why Paul and Barnabas upon hearing this, "tore their garments."

This was a traditional Jewish response to anyone who spoke blasphemy. Paul and Barnabas regarded these claims as blasphemous and Paul protests: "Men, why are you doing this? We also are men, of like nature with you, and bring you good news, that you should turn from these vain things to a living God. . . " (14:15).

We still have this problem today. If anyone appears to be specially gifted in Christendom — as a preacher, healer, or evangelist — we tend to put these people where only God should be in our lives. These people ought to remind us, "We, too, are human." How many people become estranged from Christianity when they find their pastor is also a human being? (Pastors frequently forget this, too!).

FORGETTING HUMAN NATURE

In our society, we often demand that leaders — spiritual and otherwise — be something more than human beings. To do is really quite blasphemous. While it is true that these people often fail us, we also fail our Lord in giving these people the place that belongs solely to him.

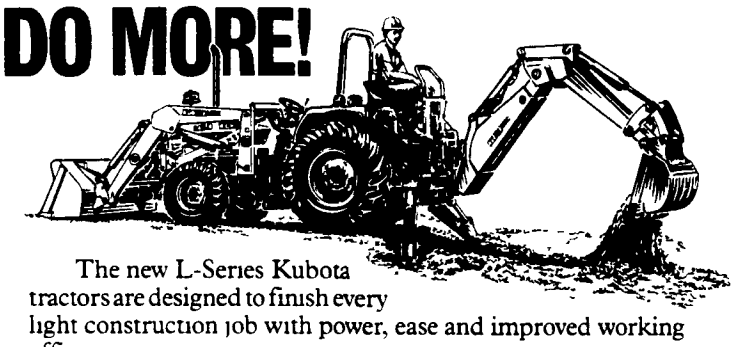
MOVE MORE LIFT MORE DO MORE!

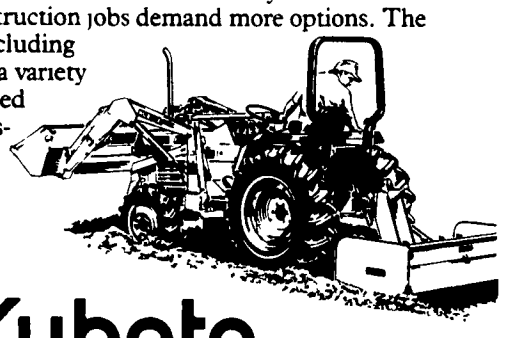


The new L-Series Kubota tractors are designed to finish every light construction job with power, ease and improved working efficiency.

Increased front loader lifting capacities help you move more material and lift heavier loads. A powerful hydraulic system results in shorter cycle times.

You'll also be able to do more with the compact Kubota L-Series – 23-49 PTO HP, tight turning radius and 4WD. And the innovative "Ever-Clutch"– a first-of-a-kind wet clutch that doubles clutch life and even comes with its own warranty.

Demanding construction jobs demand more options. The L-Series has them, including a hefty 3-point hitch, a variety of performance matched implements and industrial tires.



Come see how much more you can do with a Kubota.

Most companies would be more than happy to offer their customers the top three alfalfa varieties, the latest forage technology, and the most intensive crop management programs in the Northeast.

But we're not like most companies. At Agway, improving production efficiency and profits on your dairy farm is our ultimate goal.

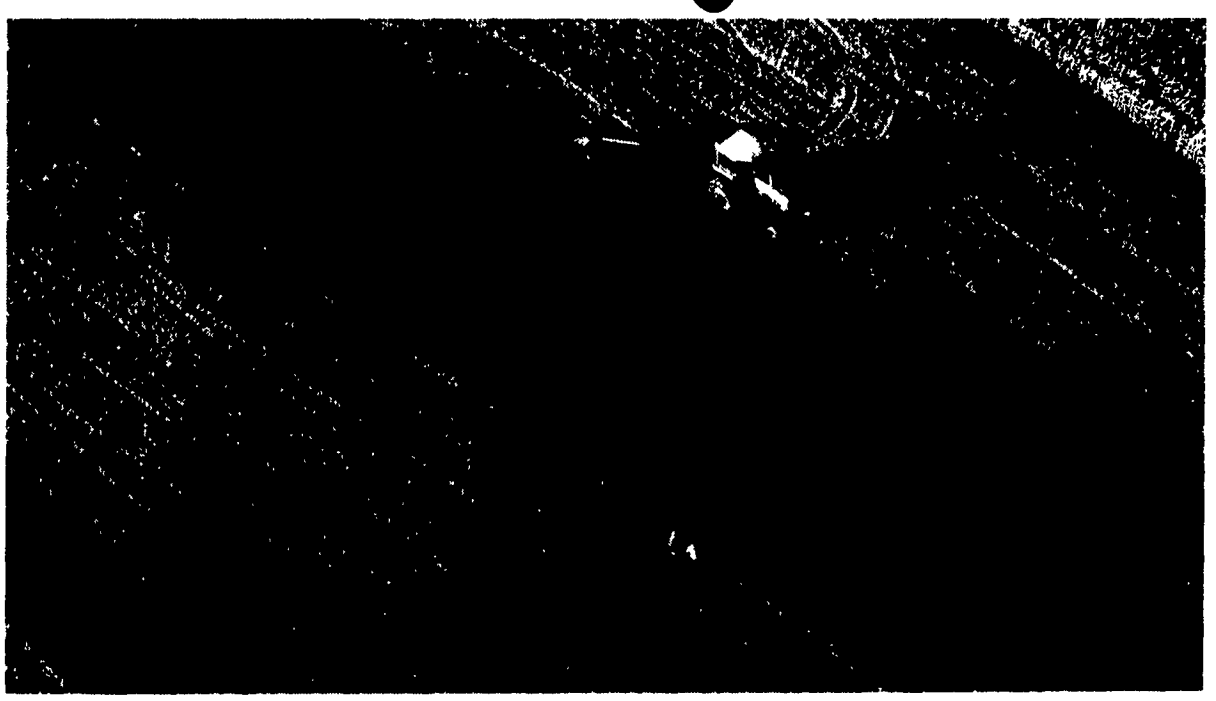
Our research and crop specialists constantly test and develop new alfalfa seeds to replace and, hopefully, outperform this year's top performers.

It's a commitment to research and dairy farming that translates into a better return on every dollar invested in your dairy operation. It means an alfalfa like Centurion which is hardy enough to resist all five major alfalfa diseases. It means an alfalfa like Majestic that grows well even with wet feet But it doesn't always mean alfalfa

If you've got some tough-to-till acreage, our Performance Plus Hay Mixture can provide high-quality forage production in marginal as well as good alfalfa soils

Talk to your Agway Farm Enterprise salesperson today. He'll help you stay on top of the latest forage developments.

WHO'S ON TOP OF THE BEST IDEAS IN FORAGE QUALITY?



An Agway Farm Enterprise Salesperson surveys the quality of the second cut of a five year-old stand of Centurion alfalfa on the Trinder Farm, Pompey, NY

RCMA Makes Statement To New York Dairy Farmers

BATAVIA, NY — New York's dairy farmers are urged to vote "yes" to maintain the Rogers-Allen Order that has produced 95 cents of premiums in the last two months.

All independent dairy farmers in New York State were mailed ballots on September 6. They are being asked to vote on whether to keep the Rogers-Allen Order in effect or it -- and the premiums it generates -- will end on September 30.

Farmers approved the Rogers-Allen Order, which sets a minimum Class I milk price of $14.50, in July, but are being asked to vote again because amendments have been made to the order. The two most important amendments are:

1. To include all New York dairy farmers in the order. This means all New York producers will receive premiums, no matter whether their milk is marketed inside or outside New York State.

2. Handlers who bring in Class I milk from out of state will be required to make equalization payments into the state pool. These are known as "compensatory payments" and are very important to the successful operation of the order.

The amendments were approved by the Commissioner of Agriculture based upon testimony presented at a hearing in Albany on August 20. Now the amended order is presented to the dairy farmers for their approval. Two-thirds of all dairy farmers in the state must vote "yes" if the order is to be kept in operation. Without the positive vote, the current order, and the minimum $14.50 milk price, will end.

"This is an all or nothing vote," said Carmen L. Ross, executive director of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA), the organization that pushed for the establishment of the Rogers-Allen Order. "Farmers either approve the amended order or there will be no order at all. That means the premiums they have received under the state pool will end."

Farmers received 95 cents per hundredweight, 50 cents for June's milk and 45 cents for July's milk, so far under an interim Rogers-Allen Order. The money generated by the state-set minimum milk price comes at a time when farmers face extremely difficult financial situations brought on by a 30-percent drop in milk prices. Many farmers across the state have been forced out of business by the devastating economic situation, said Ross.

"Farmers need the Rogers-Allen order to function as an economic safety net," he said. "Under Rogers-Allen, New York farmers are guaranteed a minimum price until July 30, 1992. But if farmers fail to vote "yes", prices will drop back to the lower levels experienced prior to June, and New York farmers will continue to face the economic threat of unstable milk prices."

It is extremely important that every ballot be returned to the Department of Agriculture by the September 25 deadline, Ross said. Any ballot that is not returned counts as a "no" vote. The current Rogers-Allen order was approved by fewer than 200 votes, so every vote is vitally important. Some ballots in the last vote were not counted because farmers had failed to mark their vote on the ballot or had not signed the ballot. Be sure to circle the "yes" section and sign the ballot, Ross said.

Farmers who were not members of a cooperative in April 1991 and who have not received a ballot should call the Department of Agriculture at 518-457-6773 or 518-457-5731.

Some farmers received more than one ballot because they have more than one milkhouse. Farmers must return every ballot they receive. Any ballot not returned counts as a "no" vote.

Cooperatives will bloc vote for their members.

Ross outlined several reasons to vote "yes";

1. Keep Higher Prices for Your Milk. RCMA estimates the Rogers-Allen order will return approximately 50 cents per hundredweight for all New York dairy farmers. Without a "yes" vote, the current state-set Class I price of $14.50 will end on September 30.

2. Protect your business from future price declines. Adopting the Rogers-Allen order creates a safety net for the volatile milk prices but does not prevent the Class I price from rising above the fixed price of $14.50. This price will be in effect until July 31, 1992.

3. Demonstrate unity among dairy farmers in the Northeast. All of New England has set Class I milk prices based upon New York's action. If the New York Rogers-Allen order ends, premiums throughout the Northeast will be endangered.

4. The new order includes all New York dairy farmers. Not all New York farmers were covered by the previous Rogers-Allen

Deer Damage More Crops

FRANKLIN (Venango Co.) — With deer populations exceeding management goals in areas of Pennsylvania, farmers sometimes find it necessary to shoot deer for crop damage. The Pennsylvania Game and Wildlife Code provides for just such action by qualified farmers who make their livelihood from agriculture.

"Crop damage will vary from one farm to the next," said John Reese, a Crawford County farmer. "One farmer may not have that much damage to his crops while the farmer in the next township has extensive crop damage. We welcome deer hunters but they haven't been able to thin the herd enough in this neighborhood, so we have to shoot deer when extensive crop damage is actually happening. This is often in the summer and early fall."

Larry Harshaw is the northwest regional director for the Pennsylvania Game Commission. Over the years he has seen many examples of crop damage by deer. "We support the right of qualified farmers to shoot deer for crop damage to protect their livelihood as long as they follow the proper rules. Good farmers are kept very busy with their work. They usually don't shoot deer unless it's the last straw. And most of them cooperate with us to be sure the deer don't go to waste. Thus, we are able to give most of the crop kill deer to a family that can use the meat," said Harshaw.

"I feel we have reached a point where we are all working in the same direction. Years ago there were those who looked dimly upon farmers shooting deer for crop damage. Surely by now people realize the impact excessive deer damage can have on a farm family income. Recently farmers have been working with us to direct hunter's to crop damage areas, not just during the special extended deer season, but even during antlered and antlerless season," he said.

"I'm a farmer and I don't dislike deer," said Doug Gilbert, president of the Crawford County Chapter of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association. "We all like to hunt deer. We like to see good deer hunters on our property. Fact is, the problem of too many deer is often caused by nearby property that's posted. The deer seek shelter on posted property by day and feed on our farm crops by night," he said.

"While most of the damage to my forage crops occurs this time of year, there are deer feeding in my fields every night of the year," Gilbert said.

Alan Dambach, a Beaver County nurseryman, said, "When we get snow cover, we really get problems. At our nursery, the shortest crop is four years (forsythia and arborvitea) and our longest crop is 13 years (Colorado Spruce). So the deer and I coexist for a lot of seasons before I harvest my nursery crop."

According to Lorraine Yocum, law enforcement supervisor, "The Game and Wildlife Code provides for qualified persons to shoot deer for crop damage. Those eligible are the farmer, the family members in his household, and employees who work for the farmer in his agricultural activities. Deer may be shot any time day or night, from a vehicle while upon the property where the damage is occurring," she said.

"After the animal is killed, the entrails must be removed and a report made to an officer of the commission within 24 hours. If the property is open to public hunting, the farmer may retain the meat from one deer for home consumption. All other deer must be turned over to the commission officer. The meat of the deer turned in is given to residents of Pennsylvania. Those receiving the deer for consumption are to be issued a required permit similar to those for a road killed deer. Head, hide, and antlers from all deer shot for crop damage are collected by the Game Commission," she said.

John Reese, a Penn State graduate in agriculture, has invited people on tours to look at crop damage in his fields. "People have to realize that farming is a vocation, not an avocation," said Reese. "If we lose money due to crop damage, it has impact on our family income.

"We invite deer hunters to our property. I would prefer that they thin the deer herd during hunting season, so we don't have a continuing problem during the next growing season," said Reese.

Lyndon Reiff Wins Again At Solanco Fair

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — There seems to be no stopping Lyndon Reiff in sheep competition. At Solanco Fair he took champion and reserve champion titles with his market lambs. He did the same thing last week at Denver Fair, and he had the champion market lamb at the 4-H Roundup.

According to 17-year-old Lyndon, he was not supposed to win. He and his 13-year-old sister, Lisa, have about 13 lambs in there flock. They care and own them jointly and try to arrange taking turns showing the best ones. This time, Lisa presumably had the better sheep.

"But you never know what the judges are looking for. Every judge is different," Lyndon said.

It was the first time, Lyndon showed Eenie, a heavyweight. Lyndon said that he decided to show the lamb by haphazardly repeating the nursery rhyme Eenie, Meenie, Miney, Moe at the sheep in the pasture.

Fortunately for Lisa, the prize money is equally split between her and her brother. Lisa started the Fair season with champion and reserve titles at E-town Fair. And, she hopes to make a comeback next week at Lampeter and Ephrata Fairs.

The sister and brother team from Strasburg got their start in sheep raising six years ago when a friend of the family gave him a runt from his flock. It took at least two hours for Lyndon to coax the runt to drink from a bottle. When a strong bond developed between Lyndon and sheep, a neighbor suggested he join a 4-H sheep club.

The first time that he showed, Lyndon clinched the champion and reserve titles.

"After that, I had high expectations," Lyndon said, "but for three or four years after that I ended on the bottom."

Last year and this year the Reiffs, children of Lloyd and Laura Reiff, have been at the top at almost every fair, but close competition appeared at Solanco on Wednesday afternoon when five-year-old Tiffany Dean made her debut with Dorset market lambs that took the champion lightweight and the reserve champion middleweight titles.

Judge Cheryl Fairbarn, Chester County Extension agent said, "Quality ran deep here. It's a show that proves you don't need large numbers to have top quality. These sheep could compete anywhere and be winners. They have a lot of meat, muscle, and style."

In showmanship, Lisa took the top spot and Lyndon was named champion fitter.

Solanco sheep show results are as follows:

Fitting: 3 years or more experience. 1. Lyndon Reiff, 2 Lisa Reiff, 3 Scott Wagner. Under 3 years experience. 1 Jessica Schmidt, 2. Kimberly Ebersole, 3. Heather Ebersole. Champion: Lyndon Reiff Reserve Lisa Showmanship 3 years or more experience: 1. Lisa Reiff, 2. Kevin Smoker, 3. Lyndon Reiff Under 3 years experience: 1. Brad Linton, 2 Kimberly Ebersole. Champion Lisa Reiff, Reserve: Kevin Smoker.

Lightweight 98-102 lbs: 1.Brad Linton, 2.Jud Wagner, 3. Jill Harnish. 106-109 lbs. 1. Tiffany Dean, 2. Scott Wagner, 3. Heather Ebersole. Champion Tiffany Dean, Reserve: Scott Wagner.

Middleweight 113-118 lbs. 1. Lyndon Reiff, 2. Tiffany Dean, 3. Jud Wagner. 128-132 lbs: 1. Lyndon Reiff, 2. Lisa Reiff, 3. Kevin Smoker. Champion: Lyndon Reiff, Reserve, Tiffany Dean.

Heavyweight 128-132 lbs. 1. Lyndon Reiff, 2. Lisa Reiff, 3. Scott Wagner. 140-146 lbs. 1.Lisa Reiff, 2. Kevin Smoker, 3. Brad Linton. Champion: Lyndon Reiff, Reserve: Lisa Reiff.

Champion Market Lamb: Lyndon Rieff. Reserve: Lyndon Reiff.

In friendly competition, Lyndon topped his sister, Lisa, when he showed both champion and reserve champion market lambs at Solanco Fair.

Pricing Corn Silage

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a guide to pricing corn silage, a consideration made very important locally with the drought, which was initially prepared in 1988 by former multi-county farm management agent Bruce Kreider. It has been recently revised by Luther Smith, current farm management agent.

There are four factors to consider in pricing silage:
- Alternative values of standing corn to the grower. This creates the minimum price.
- Cost of alternative feeds to the buyer. This should set the maximum price.
- Adjustment for harvest and hauling expenses.
- Measuring tons sold and adjusting for moisture.

☛ The "alternative value of the standing corn to the grower" should create the minimum price for the silage. If the grower cannot get at least as much for that field as silage as it is worth as grain (shelled or ear corn), then why sell it as silage?

Calculating Alternative Value of Standing Corn

Information Needed:
1. Standing yield as grain (shelled or ear)
2. Standing yield as silage
3. Farm-gate value of grain (price less drying, storage and hauling)

Formula:

$$\frac{\text{standing grain yield X farm-gate value}}{\text{Standing silage yield}}$$

☛ The "cost of alternative feeds . . ." sets the maximum that the livestock farmer should pay for standing corn silage.

If the corn silage price is higher than the cost of alternative feeds, the livestock farmer should buy those alternatives.

This table would describe maximum value for feedable corn silage. The livestock farmer must also consider that there will be storage losses from corn silage, with an average range of storage losses being 5 to 10 percent. Maximum values should be reduced to account for storage losses.

Dr. George Haenlein from the University of Delaware provides the feeding value of corn silage, based on the reported value of corn grain during September 1988.

Prevailing Shelled Corn Price

Estimated Grain Yield	TDN %	$2.00	$2.50	$3.00	$3.50

Pricing Corn Silage

Corn Silage Value at Silo /Ton @ 35% DM

80 bu/A	66	17.91	20,98	24.04	27.11
120+ bu/A	70	19.00	22.25	25.50	28.75

- Corn silage prices should be adjusted to reflect "harvesting costs."

If the livestock farmer harvests and hauls the corn silage, the price of the corn silage should be reduced to account for this cost. Corn silage harvest costs have been calculated in the $3.50 to $5.00 per ton range. The low end of the range would describe higher yielding corn silage and fields near the silo and the higher range would describe lower yielding silage or fields further away from the silo.

- Determining tonnage sold can be a challenge. The best bet is to mutually agree on one of the following methods before silage harvest.

A. Weigh Wagon Loads - Weigh at least one representative load on each wagon used in harvest. Keep track of loads harvested into each wagon and strive to fill them consistently full. The weights usually run about 30-40 pounds of silage per cubic foot.

B. Measure Silo Levels - This is the most accurate way to measure larger purchases of silage. Measure the number of settled feet of silage added from the transaction. Refer to accurate silo capacity charts for tons of silage sold. These estimates are available from many sources, including the Cooperative Extension office.

After you have calculated the weight of corn silage sold, you must now adjust for moisture differences. The prices we have been talking about are standardized to 35% dry matter. To calculate 35% dry matter tons sold or bought, you will need a moisture tester and the following formula. When using the formula, be sure to use dry matter whole number (40%) rather than decimal (.40).

$$\frac{\text{Tons of Silage Sold} \times \text{Measured Dry Matter \% (XX)}}{35}$$

These four steps should help you determine a fair price for corn silage. The difference between the sellers minimum and the buyers maximum values will give some bargaining room for both parties involved. Take the time to do the calculations so that you can be satisfied with the results of the sale.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

ARIS QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

ARIS allows dairymen and their authorized veterinarians and nutritional consultants to access individual DHIA herd records from a personal computer to the main computer in State College. Call the State DHIA office number listed in the FOCUS column head to learn more about how you can use this unique DHIA service to increase the profitability of your herd and the DHIA records you produce.

Q. I was logging-on to Penn State's PENpages and I noticed that DHIA was an option. If I type DHIA instead of PEN, can I access ARIS?

A. No, PENpages and DHIA's ARIS are different systems. PENpages is available free of charge. Each ARIS user is assigned a user ID and password and is billed for his time on-line. ARIS does use the PEN Network, which is a series of phone connections from the counties to University Park. Another requirement before using ARIS is the ARIS3270 communications program. This software, sent to you by DHIA after you subscribe, is configured with the proper communications and keyboard settings for ARIS.

Q: Must I have a computer with a hard disk to use ARIS?

A: No, the ARIS program files are small, taking about 215 thousand bytes of storage. These program files fit onto a floppy diskette with plenty of room left over for data files. Some people use one diskette for the ARIS program files, and another for the data files that are downloaded from the DHIA mainframe. It is more convenient to use ARIS from a hard disk, but not necessary.

-A 900 pound Angus steer named BooBoo, Jr., carried off the grand championship rosette in the Solanco Fair Baby Beef Show Thursday for his pretty owner, Rose Marie Linton.

Rose Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Linton of Quarryville R2, dubbed her calf BooBoo, Jr., in respect for the steer, BooBoo she fed last year in 4-H Club work. The steer, a Lancaster County calf, was bred by Clyde K. Eshleman, Washington Boro R1.

The win for the 17 year-old senior at Solanco High School keeps the championship in the Lintons for the second consecutive year. Her brother Fred won the rosette last year with a Hereford.

Runner-up in the contest was a 1,000 pound shorthorn named Toby, owned and exhibited by Magda Frey of Quarryville R2, a 16 year-old junior at Solanco High. Magda repeated her showing of 1959 when she also showed the reserve champion at Solanco.

The champion Hereford was shown by Donald Swinehart, Quarryville.

-Mrs. Milton K. Morgan of 1916 New Holland Pike was the earliest Pennsylvania entrant in the sheep department of the fifth annual Pennsylvania Livestock Exposition. Mrs. Morgan is a veteran exhibitor in the show and has won many prizes with her Suffolk breeding flock. She has seven entries this year.

-The father and son team of Amos and Kenneth Rutt of Quarryville R2 made it two in a row as they took the tractor driving championships Thursday at the Solanco Fair.

Kenneth repeated as county 4-H champion while his father took his second consecutive adult crown. Isaac Hershey, New Providence, waws second in the adult class.

The FFA championship was won by Carl Troop of Quarryville R3, a senior at Solanco High School. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Troop was runner-up in the divison last year. Dale Herr of Kirkwood R1 finished in second place in FFA competition followed by John Frey, Qyuarryville R2; Ross Trimble, Quarryville R2; Harold Lefever, Quarryville R2 and Harold Beck, Quarryville R3, second to sixth respectively.

-Newspaper photo shows Solanco Fair's Harvest Queen Miss Jeanne Cutler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Cutler, Drumore, being crowned by retiring queen Anne Quigley, Quarryville. Miss Cutler, a 17 year-old senior academic student at Solanco High School, plans a career in nursing. She is a member of the Future Nurses of America, Future Teachers of America and the Solanco band and chorus. She was presented a 50.00 savings bond by the Quarryville Lions Club. Runner-up in the contest was Miss Betty Ulrich of Peach Bottom. She received a $25 bond.

Heller Farm Receives Clean Water Award

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Secretary of Environmental Resources Arthur Davis recently awarded the state's 1991 Chesapeake Bay Clean Water Farm Award to John J. Heller of Aspers, Adams Co.

At a meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts, Secretary Davis presented a certificate of recognition and a large blue and white sign that reads "Pennsylvania Chesapeake Bay Program Clean Water Farm Award... For Protecting and Conserving Soil and Water."

The Adams Co. farm family received this distinction for outstanding achievements in managing its soil and nutrient resources. The Hellers routinely test their soil and animal manure to determine the nutrient requirements of the crops.

With financial and technical help from Pennsylvania's Chesapeake Bay Program, they installed a manure storage facility to allow the spreading of manure at times of the year when the crops can best use the stored nutrients. They usually incorporate manure within two days of spreading to maximize the nutrients' availability.

Other innovations include the use of newspaper bedding for the farm's 60 dairy cows, which Heller believes improves herd health by reducing mastitis. In the pastures, he rotates fields for grazing purposes and limits the animals' access to the stream to prevent streambank erosion. Stones collected from his fields are used to stabilize the streambanks.

Heller believes that the less the ground is disturbed, the less topsoil will be lost. Cover crops are used for winter ground protection, and no-till and some chisel plowing is employed. In addition to his own 60 acres, Heller rents another 140 acres. He has been successful in persuading the landowners of this rented land to allow him to install various conservation practices such as waterways, contour strips, and a spring development. As for pesticides, Heller takes the time to educate himself about the proper application and disposal of pesticides.

Each year, the Chesapeake Bay Education Office awards the Clean Water Farm Award on behalf of the Department of Environmental Resources' Chesapeake Bay Program. To date, more than 500 farms have received financial and technical assistance from county conservation districts and the DER toward the installation of conservation practices. Twenty-eight counties located within the Susquehanna River Basin now participate in the cost-share program.

As part of the award, John Heller, his wife Diane, and their young daughter visited the Chesapeake Bay recently to learn more about the bay on a firsthand basis. They were part of a trip sponsored by the Bay Education Office to Soloman's Island. Activities included a fossil hunt led by the Calvert Marine Museum, a visit to the Chesapeake Bay Biological Labs, and a boating excursion to the Benedict Estuarine Lab.

-Mrs. Elizabeth Shaub of Ephrata showed slides taken during her recent trip to Italy and Portugal at the recent meeting of the Society of Farm Women 8 in the social hall of the Maytown Lutheran Church.

Mrs. William H. Heisey led devotions and had several poems. Musical selection were sung by a quartette of Bonnie Hoffman, Patty Zinn, Beth Huber and Kathy Ney. They were accompanied by Mrs. Millard Hoffman.

order. The current proposal means all will share the benefits of the emergency order.

5. Maintain fair prices with markets in other states. New provisions in the Rogers-Allen order will put all handlers on the same competitive level. This creates a healthy market environment in which to sell your milk.

"For these reasons, and for a sound economic future for the dairy industry in New York State, farmers are urged to vote 'yes'," said Ross.

Hog Exhibitor Proves It's Possible To Be A First-Time Champion

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Keith Martin, 15, a freshman at Lancaster Mennonite, learned Thursday that a first-time champion can be a grand champion of an entire show.

It was his first championship placing at any fair event, and it brought some surprise for him, as well as the trophy for his 258-pound last-of-the-heavyweight class Hampshire/Duroc gilt at the Solanco Fair Swine Show on Thursday.

For Sue Brown, 17, a senior at Penn Manor, this was her third year of exhibiting (she placed in 1989 grand champion at the Lampeter show). She has been showing three years at Solanco, and picked up reserve championship with her 243-pound champion light heavyweight purebred Spotted.

Judge Ken Winebark, Lebanon Co. agent, saw the challenge in sorting through 85 pigs for the champion. The belted gilt was "the second leanest in the show," he said, "and has tremendous thickness. The gilt is freer moving and I really like the length of the gilt."

The reserve showed a lot of freshness and good rib area, as well as ease of movement. "It's a real good market hog, a very productive hog," said Winebark.

At the conclusion of the showmanship contest, Winebark reminded the young exhibitors that they need to show the best they can show "all the time," he said.

Senior exhibitors must know and understand the industry. As Winebark was judging, he quizzed the exhibitors on carcass evaluation, including providing an estimate of loin eye. He said the senior group "needs to be on top of things" and know what kind of "pork chop" the hog will have. Some understood the questions and could accurately answer them. But exhibitors "should know the industry standards and try not to guess," Winebark said.

Exhibitors should also keep the pig moving and stay about 20 feet away from the judge.

Show competitors should also keep a brush in hand and use it when necessary.

Jersey Breeders Will Meet

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Junior Jersey Breeders will be meeting in Harrisburg on Sept. 22, the evening before the State Junior Dairy Show, to discuss upcoming programs and activities. The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. and will be held in room C of the Pennsylvania State Farm Show Complex.

At the meeting, junior directors and leaders will discuss many activities including the junior herd trip to the Louisville show, a bus-trip also to the Louisville show, and state and national awards. The trips to Louisville, KY, center around the National Jersey Show and Activities held from November 9 to 12. Participants in the herd trip sponsored by the PJJCC, are selected at the State Junior Dairy Show. The trip, both fun and educational for all participants, has been an annual event for many years.

In addition to taking a state herd to Louisville, Jersey juniors that do not qualify animals for the show will be able to join a bus-load of other Jersey enthusiasts to see the show and activities. The bus will leave Pennsylvania on Friday, Nov. 8 and return on Monday, Nov. 11. Cost details are still being arranged and will be shared with juniors at this meeting.

Juniors will also hear about several state and national awards for which they can compete. The PJJCC annually selects Junior and Senior Achievement Awards, recognizes production records, and gives awards for scrapbooks. A complete listing of these awards will also be available at the meeting.

Further information about the meeting or PJJCC programs is available by calling (717) 540-1687

Reading Dairy Show Highlights Local Herds

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

READING (Berks Co.) — Holsteins and Jerseys were the dominant dairy breeds exhibited at the Reading Fair Wednesday.

The Reading Fair is held at the rear of the Fairgrounds Mall shopping plaza north of Reading city, along Rt. 222. A medium-sized fair, the agricultural shows are comprised mostly of entries from local animal enthusiasts.

There were 49 exhibitors registered for the Holstein dairy show and 15 registered for the Jersey breed show. No one showed Milking Shorthorns and a brother and sister duo showed Guernseys. Five exhibitors showed Ayrshires and five showed Brown Swiss.

Except for several top placings, the owners of the winning animals were registered in both the open and youth shows.

Despite the low number of exhibitors in most of the colored breeds, the Holstein and Jersey shows and several classes in the other breeds provided some level of competition for premium money and awards and gave show judge Leroy Plance, Wellsboro, a challenge in placing animals, he said.

Plance, a Holstein breeder with more than 30 home bred Excellents to his credit, milks an average herd of 40 cows and currently has a dozen Excellents in the herd. He judged both the Holsteins and colored breeds.

While giving reasons, Plance expressed his preference for a sturdy front end with good body depth, rib, leg support, a level and wide dairy rear, and overall type correctness, while some judges will overlook structural flaws in favor of strong udder aspects and teat placement.

Plance was also very frank in his comments, stating bluntly that certain cattle were over or under conditioned, which ones were in need of hoof trimming, etc.

His choice of grand champion Holstein was a 3-year-old daughter of Mel-Est Valiant Irose Melvin, owned by Stacy Geist, of Mertztown, "Ro-Ru Melvin Noel," born Dec. 15, 1988.

In the open division, the reserve grand champion to Geist's "Noel" was David and Rhonda Pool's dry 4-year-old "Ridgedale UHRA Beauty."

In the youth division, the reserve grand champion was Michael Davis's 3-year-old "Caw Croft Stewart Star," which was also second in that age class to "Noel."

The junior champion of the Holsteins was an intermediate heifer calf, "Cor-Phil Royal Macey," owned by Jessica Luckenbill.

The reserve junior open champion in open division was a junior yearling, "Fantasyland Star Ivory," sired by Hanover Hill Starbuck, and owned by David and Ronda Pool.

A Blackstar daughter, Eric-Dew Blackstar Dana-ET, owned by Erica Davis was second in the junior yearling class to Pool's "Ivory," and reserve junior champion in the youth division.

In the Ayrshire breed, an intermediate heifer calf outshown older junior-aged heifers to win the title of junior champion. The calf was "S&M Ayr Reliables Rebecca," owned by Jill Vail, of Myerstown.

Jed's junior 2-year-old, "Karyln R. Command's Keeley," took the senior and grand champion title's however. "Keeley" also had the best udder of the Ayrshire show, which Plance said he admired, but questioned the depth of the floor in relation to the hock for the age of the cow. The udder, large and well-connected seemed almost too large overall in proportion to the rest of the animal.

The reserve senior and grand champion was 3-year-old "Spotted Betsy Ross," show by Chris Blatt, of Robesonia. She had the second best udder.

In the Brown Swiss breed, 10 animals were shown with Jason and Randy Balthaser, of Bernville showing the grand and reserve grand champion animals, respectively. Randy also showed the junior champion. Derrick Hix, of Mohrsville, showed the reserve junior champion.

Amy and Daniel Hollenbach, of Bernville, showed eight Guernseys. Daniel's senior 2-year-old, "Lebanon Valley Boris Tina," was named senior and grand champion, while Amy's junior 2-year-old, "Blue Mountain View King Molly," was reserve senior and grand champion.

Both of Amy's junior calves, "Blue Mt. View Carey," and "Blue Mt. Vew Mariah," were junior and reserve junior champions, respectively.

For the second year in a row, well-known Jersey breeder Mildred Seeds, from Downingtown, and her pair of sister Jerseys took the Jersey titles at Reading.

The pair of 3-year-old, full-sister cows, continued their championship tour of local fair shows by taking the senior and reserve senior and grand and reserve grand titles at the Reading show.

From the left, Randy Balthaser holds the halter and rosette for his reserve grand champion Brown Swiss, while brother Jason holds the halter of his grand champion.

This day old calf almost became the youngest calf to be shown at the Reading Fair, perhaps any dairy show, in the dam and daughter competition of the Jersey breed. Owned by Mildred Seeds, the mother and daughter were not permitted to compete because the calf had not been entered in any other competition. Well-known Jersey breeder and shower Mildred Seeds apparently likes to start working with her show cattle early.

Seeds' animals are not only well-known for winning, but also for their show-ring appearance — she allows the horns on her cattle to grow and uniquely uses brass chain and lockettes to show off the esthetic color qualities of the Jersey breed.

However, the win reversed the order in which the two Jersey cows were placed during the Allentown Fair last month. At this fair, "Top-O-Hill (TOH) Admiral Valentine" caught the judge's eye for first place honors, while placing sister "Tina," in reserve status.

The "bloom" condition of the udder during the show was cited by the judges at Allentown and Reading as being the determining factor in placing the sister animals. They two were placed that was also in taking best and second best udder of the show.

The pair of Jersey sisters are products of crosses between dam TOH Silver Beacon and sire Bridon Master Admiral-ET. In addition to these recent wins, they have also captured titles at Kimberton, Cecil County in Maryland, and at Schuylkill County.

In the youth division of the show, Ben Hendricks, from Phoenixville showed the senior and grand champion Jersey, while Susan Curtis showed the reserve grand in the youth. Curtis's intermediate calf was also the open and youth junior champion.

Jessica Haag's 3-year-old took reserve senior champion in the youth division.

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Reflecting the increasing prices in butter, powder and cheese, but especially cheese, the Minnesota-Wisconsin (M-W) Price Series had the highest increase of the year so far, taking a 41-cent leap from $10.58 in July to $10.99 in August.

This makes the fourth consecutive month of increases for a total of 97 cents since March. It's still $2.44 lower than the $13.43 in July of last year but only 79 cents less than 1989, and 47 cents better than 1988.

It was after July last year that the M-W price began to drop, but this year it's on the way up and if the increases continue, it's expected that we will be passing last year's price by October.

After that a lot depends on what Congress does with a new dairy bill.

21 Cents In 15 Weeks

Much of the credit for increases in the M-W again will have to go to cheese prices that continued their climb after fifteen weeks of increases from May 3 to August 9 for a total-to-date of 21 cents from $1.05 to $1.26 with no end in sight.

Just within the last month there were increases of seven cents a pound with leaps as high as five cents in one week.

So far, no one sees any reason for the increases to stop now, as more milk moves from the upper Midwest to the Southeast; production declines continue nationally; and school openings next month put an additional demand on fluid milk.

One uncertainty, in addition to the effect of weather on production, is when the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) decides to sell some of its 30 million pounds of cheese that it has in uncommitted inventories.

Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan promised to withhold CCC sales until milk prices improved, but he didn't say how much. It's very unlikely that this would happen now, but it is an important reason why cheese prices continue to climb beyond the 110 percent of the support price, which happened last month when CCC stocks could have been sold.

With cheese plants competing with butter/powder plants for decreasing milk supplies, even butter and powder prices are showing some improvement.

Powder in particular has had price increases in each of the last three months and is now seven cents over the support price at 92 cents a pound.

Butter prices have not shown as much improvement and, while there have been increases the last two months, they were barely enough to bring them up to the support price of 98 cents.

However, during the first week of August, CCC purchases were the lowest in over two years with some handlers canceling their previous offers to sell to the CCC — another sign of tightening supplies and increasing prices.

Farm Prices

Those increasing M-W prices of the last three months are now all moving down to the farm price and showing increases in the uniform or blend price of 20 cents last month and 55 cents this month. That makes the minimum farm price — before premiums — of $11.59 at the 201-210 mile zone for July milk testing 3.5 percent butterfat.

The big jump was in the Class III price from $10.47 to $11.02 or 55 cents. That made up 43 percent of the July pool.

The Class II price was up $1.11 from $10.16 to $11.27, but that was only 18 percent of the milk pooled.

The Class I price was up 19 cents and made up 39 percent of the pool.

With three classes of milk now in all Federal Orders here, there is the opportunity for getting more money for milk going into soft dairy products in Class II.

The difference last month was 25 cents more in Class II over Class III. With the pattern set in recent months there's little doubt of blend prices continuing to rise for the rest of the year.

Premiums

In addition to higher market prices for milk, programs to get higher prices for farmers have proliferated in nearly all of the Northeastern states.

Pennsylvania has had it's $1.05 on Class I Milk for over two years and the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board held a hearing this week to consider increases because of drought damage to crops.

Eligible New York farmers recently got a 50-cent premium that reflected a statewide pool. That put a $13.85 price for June on Class I milk purchased and sold in New York.

The same program will continue in July, but starting August the Rogers-Allen program requiring $14.50 for Class I milk for one year began.

Premiums will vary from month to month, depending on the difference between the federal or state order prices for Class I milk and the $14.50 minimum. There were no premiums on Class II and III milk in June and July because the market price increased enough to compensate for the differences between the minimum price and the market price.

New York handlers are required to report their uses of milk to the state Department of Agriculture and Markets by the 20th of the following month and pay its producers the premium by the 30th of the month.

What we still don't know is how much of the required premium is new money and how much was a drop in the direct premiums paid voluntarily by the handlers.

Another uncertainty is the payment to New York producers whose milk is sold out of state. These are the compensatory payments required of handlers under an amendment to the original law, but are now involved in litigation.

However, it also raises the question of premiums to Pennsylvania producers selling milk to New York handlers and how their premiums may be affected by the New York law.

The difference between the $13.85 interim Class I price and the Order 2 price was $1.39 in June, but will drop to $1.20 in July then back up to $1.50 in August and down to $1.09 in September as the $14.50 Rogers-Allen price becomes effective.

A very different program that Pennsylvania's in that it provides minimum class prices rather than add on premiums, but one that should provide benefits to New York farmers and illustrate the value of producer organizations like RCMA and RCMB.

Recess

With your Congressman home for the summer recess until Sept. 10, you may have an opportunity to talk to him about the dairy provisions of the next farm bill.

However, between the bills that were produced by the agriculture committees of the House and the Senate, plus the two "compromise" bills that were added just before adjournment, it seems that nearly everything that you could think of has been included.

In fact, when they return in September it may look like they're starting all over again, but with much less time to reach a consensus of what to move on to the floor.

It has been suggested that they wait until after the hearings on an alternative pricing system to the M-W and a recommended decision on the national hearings held last year before they decide on the 1992 dairy program.

Whether it's planned that way still may happen, but, in the meantime, the dairy bill is on hold until Sept. 10.

Emergency Program

It appears that some northeastern counties that incurred crop losses due to the weather may have some help on feed purchases through the Emergency Livestock Feed Program this fall and winter.

Just in case your county is included, don't destroy damaged crops or replant those fields before you check with your county ASCS office to make an assessment of the loss.

Also, get records on what you have harvested in forage or grain crops this year and how they compare to your normal yields. Also be sure you have filed an AD-1026 form to show you are in compliance with conservation plans from SCS as well as the sodbuster program. Without this you won't be eligible for either the Emergency Livestock Feed Program or the five cent refund on your 1991 milk production if it is lower than 1990.

Thanks and Congratulations

Reciprocal Exchange Takes Hog Farmer To China

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—In a reciprocal exchange after a Lancaster hog farmer accommodated visitors from China to see his digester that turns manure into usable methane fuel, Harlen Keener had the chance to go to China as part of a USDA fact-finding tour.

"I was walking on air with excitement when Dr. Richard Fite called from Washington and asked if I still wanted to go to China," Keener said. "The answer was 'yes,' and that's how I got to go along."

At a luncheon Tuesday at the Stockyard Inn, sponsored by Pennfield Feeds, Keener and Fite reported on the recent trip and showed slides of people, places, and equipment they saw. Fite's work with USDA is to make recommendations on the government's brucellosis eradication program in the US. He found that the major problem with the disease was in wild pigs in the south and not much was being done with the program.

When Fite learned that the Chineese had developed an oral vaccine that might be usable in the US, he put in a request for an exchange mission to China to research the vaccine. The mission was approved, and when it became clear that an additional person could go along on the trip, Fite asked Keener to be that person because of his knowledge of pork production.

"I was suprised at the number of people in China," Keener said. "They have about the same square miles of land as we have in the US. But we have 250 million people. They have one billion, 400 million people. A city of one million people is a small city to them."

Keener said he was fascinated by the way the Chinese use manure and sewage as a source of energy. Since pork is a staple in China, (they have 360 million hogs compared to only 56 million hogs in the US) 90 percent of the hogs are housed at rural and urban residences. Each household combines the manure from bout 10 pigs and the household's sewage in a small digester that allows about two cubic feet of methane gas to be siphoned off for cooking and to provide lighting for the home. Millions of homes have these digester systems as part of their household economy.

As for the countryside, Keener said they saw beautiful scenery but noted that the rivers and streams were very polluted. And the air was often thick with smoke and smog that was hard on a person's eyes.

"We saw lots of people who, unlike what I saw in the Soviet Union in 1988, had plenty of food," Keener said. "They are friendly people, and we were treated very well. Wheat and rice are main crops, and in some areas camels, goats and sheep are plentiful."

To summarize the findings of the trip, Fite said they did obtain information about the broculusis vaccine produced by the Chinese. But since they were not able to bring samples along back to the US, they have not been able to do any diagnostic tests in the US.

"We need to obtain some of the vaccine and test it in our labs to find out if the claims made by the Chinese are true. If they are true, then the vaccine is better than anything we have in the US, and we will find application for it in our programs."

FFA Members Compete At York Fair

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — FFA members from four York County schools competed in a variety of livestock judging activities at the York Fair.

Nichole Willwert, Red Lion, took champion honors in the beef breeding show. Ed Livingston, Dover, exhibited the champion market steer. Livingston was also named master fitter and showman of the beef contest. Polled Hereford breeder Andy Schmidt, Monkton, Maryland, served as the judge.

In sheep competition, David Myers of Northern took both champion ram and ewe in the Dorset breed. LeAnn Graham of Red Lion exhibited the reserve champion Dorset ewe. Myers also took Hampshire ewe champion, over Travis Hartman, Dover, in reserve.

Top market lamb honors went to LeAnn Graham, Red Lion, taking champion honors with her first-place mediumweight. Red Lion's Tammy Flory, with her first-place light heavyweight, captured the reserve honor. Taking first in the heavyweight class was Daniel Graham, Red Lion.

Red Lion chapter members snagged both the sheep fitting and showmanship awards. Champion fitter in the sheep competition was LeAnn Graham, while Tammy Flory was named champion showman. Judge for the sheep classes was Dave Harpster, Boalsburg.

Paul Rauhauser, Dover, claimed a bulk of the prizes in FFA dairy classes, taking champions in both the Guernsey and Jersey breeds. Holstein honors were split between Cole Everett and Allen Hushon, both representing the Kennard Dale chapter. Everett took junior and grand champion with his intermediate calf, over Hushon's reserve junior and grand senior calf. Dairy judges were Maryland Holstein breeders Jason Myers and Michael Haines.

Largest FFA competition was in the swine category, with 15 entrants vying for top market hog and breeding class honors.

David Myers, Northern chapter, claimed all breeding class honors in both Duroc and Spotted Hog divisions. Brian Kunkle, Dover, snagged the champion honors for both fitting and showmanship.

Weight class winners included:

200-lb. 1 Dan Keslar, Dover, 2 Tim Rinehold, Kennard-Dale, 3 Corey Miller, Kennard Dale

212-lb. 1 Brian Kunkle, Dover, 2 Mike Stermer, Dover, 3 Adam McCallister, Kennard-Dale

218-lb. 1 Josh Hoffman, Dover, 2. Brian Kunkle, Dover, 3 David Myers, Northern

My corn acres are planted to hybrids that pass my test.

I've learned over the years that almost everything works better if I have a plan; and that includes deciding which hybrids should go on the bulk of my corn acres. That's why no new hybrid makes it into my "permanent" lineup until I've seen it on my own farm for at least two years.

Take my Jacques 7820, for example. I started with it because it looked good on a neighbor's place all season long. Well, the two years I tested it were about as different from each other as any two years could be. But both times, 7820 was right up at the top in yields and acted like it was bred just for those conditions.

That made me wonder if I really needed to do my own testing — but I like the extra level of confidence it gives me.

Don't get me wrong. I trust the results of Jacques own testing program. But the hybrids I plant have to pass my test, too. Jacques 7820 did.

Eshelman Repeats As Reading Sheep Grand Champion

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

READING (Berks Co.) — This is how champion names are made:

On the morning of September 16 at the Reading Fairgrounds, Bruce Snyder, Kutztown, accidentally rips the ear tag off of his Dorset ram lamb, leaving a little hole in the ear cartilage. He nicknames the lamb "Hole."

In the spring of 1990, Amy Eshelman, 17, Sinking Spring, attends the Oxford National Sale in Springfield, Illinois. She purchases a lamb, which she later nicknames "Gretchen," and not only does the Oxford ewe win grand champion ewe as a lamb at the 1990 Reading Fair, it wins grand champion the next year as a yearling.

The champion show — despite record-breaking heat and humidity, sweating exhibitors and restless sheep — was one of the largest in the fair's history, with 25 exhibitors and more than twice as many sheep.

But for the champion breed show, the decision was "even closer with the ewes than with the rams," said Rodney Gilbert, judge for the show.

The "outstanding females" in the ring will all become productive females, according to Gilbert.

Choosing the champion ram is an "unfun job," he said. It becomes difficult to decide, because it depends on what the animal will be used for, as a sire source, wool source, or as dual-purpose. Most of the rams in the grand champion show were lambs, but all "are powerful rams and they'll work well" in any operation, according to the judge.

Kelly Glaser swept the top placings in the Corriedale class, winning champion and reserve ewe. Amy Oxford won every first place in the Oxford class. The Anspach family won every placing in the Hampshire class, and Megan Perry won nearly every placing in the Shropshire class.

Maintaining control of the sheep is essential to keeping the animals "from darting off like a rocket," said Rodney in the fitting and showmanship contest. Many of the sheep at Reading have been accustomed to fair shows, but Rodney cautioned the showmen to hold the sheep under the chin and on top.

Fitting champion Amy Eshelman kept the "face really tightened, and the sheep exhibits a really tight body with high quality fleece," said Rodney. Eshelman also won grand champion market lamb.

Show experience often leads to a championship, as it did for champion showman Joyce Heffner, who won the senior champion for age 15 and over.

Following is a list of show placings.

Proposed Water Fee Meeting Set

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission will hold a public hearing on a reproposed project review filing and monitoring fee schedule.

This hearing will be held on Wednesday, October 2, at the Pennsylvania Game Commission Headquarters Auditorium, 2001 Elmerton Avenue, Harrisburg, Pa., beginning at 10:00 a.m.

The fee schedule was first proposed in two alternative forms on April 10, 1991 in the Federal Register, p. 14556, and later in the signatory state registers and bulletins. A public hearing was also held on May 23, 1991.

As a result of comments reviewed at that hearing and numerous other comments both written and oral from concerned citizens, legislators, and government officials, the commission chose alternative 1 and made several significant amendments to alternative 1.

A reproposed version of the fee schedule was then published in the "Federal Register" on July 26, 1991 at p. 34235 with a request for written comments by August 31, 1991. The reproposal was also published in the "Pennsylvania Bulletin," the "Maryland Register," and the "New York Register."

Since republication, it has become apparent to the commission from comments, phone inquiries, and meetings with interested parties that further discussion of the fee schedule proposal is needed so that all points of view can be aired and all questions answered. For this reason, the commission has scheduled another public hearing as stated above.

The hearing will be informal in nature. Interested parties are invited to attend the hearing and to participate by making oral or written statements presenting their data, views, and comments on the reproposed fee schedule. Those wishing to personally appear to present their views are urged to notify the commission in advance that they desire to do so, though this will not be a prerequisite.

More information, along with a copy of the reproposed fee schedule as printed in the "Federal Register" may be obtained by contacting Richard A. Cairo, Susquehanna River Basin Commission, 1721 N. Front St., Harrisburg, Pa. 17102-2391, (717) 238-0423.

N.E. Sheep Producers Vote Yes

DENVER, Colo. — Sheep producers across the Northeast are speaking up in favor of an upcoming industry referendum. Growers in that region are voicing support for the continuation of producer education and the promotion of lamb and wool through checkoff dollars.

The referendum will ask sheep producers if they want to continue the national promotion programs, which are funded through a deduction from wool incentive payments. The program has been voted on and renewed nine times.

President and Director of New York State's Empire Sheep Producers Association John Bloomer, said, "I think sheep producers across the country are on the verge of being able to witness dramatic changes in the national lamb marketing structure. Adequate funding of the national organization is critical in reaching these goals and, for this reason, passage of the referendum is imperative."

Pennsylvania sheep producer Janet Mawhinney is also backing the referendum. She said, "Let's continue the trend of increasing lamb consumption. Support the American Sheep Industry Association and vote yes on the referendum."

The wool incentive program currently deducts six cents per pound from wool incentive payments. Producers receive wool incentive payments, based on tariffs for imported wool, every year according to the amount of wool they produce.

In the referendum proposal, deductions for the 1991 marketing year could be up to seven cents per pound of wool. Sheep industry leaders could opt to increase deductions by one cent per year to a maximum increase of 11 cents deducted per pound of wool through the next four years. They could also choose to maintain the seven cent deduction level.

Phil Hobbie, a Hartland, Vt., grower, explains why he thinks deduction monies are important to Northeastern states. He said, "Producers in small farm-flock states, such as Vermont, use the SID program quite extensively. SID provides current information and new technologies first and that's a plus for sheep producers."

Farmer Of Year

fast," said Gardner, a dairy farmer himself.

He said that Eastern, a Syracuse-based co-op with 3,100 member-farms in nine states, was pushing for legislative relief.

Gardner said he welcomed the action that several Northeast states have taken to raise the price for farmers through mandated cash premiums milk handlers and dealers must pay, but added that action on the federal level would have more far-reaching impact.

Because the floor price for raw milk is set by the government, Gardner said he was looking for Congressional action to raise that minimum price, or support price, for farmers. Having a more stable price, he said, would help do three things: (1) prevent wide swings in retail price and product availability; (2) keep more farmers in business, and (3) bolster the wounded rural economy.

The Walkers said they believed one other thing needed to be emphasized: No matter what price the farmer receives, it's important to give the consumer a quality product.

"Quality starts here on the farm," said Shelley.

Chuck noted the cash bonuses that the co-op pays for quality "is an incentive", but that's not the reason we do it."

Said Shelley: "We'd do it anyways."

Even though they may get exceptional results, they do not regard their efforts as extra ordinary.

"We just keep things clean," Shelley said.

Said Chuck: "Keeping the cows clean and keeping the equipment clean."

Added Shelley: "I'm not stingy with soap."

The Walkers have been members of the cooperative the entire 17 years that they have been married, and Chuck was a member for several years before that.

Also helping on the farm are son Chad, 15, and daughter Sarah, 13. Sarah recently won recognition herself at the New York State Fair, taking first place in 4H and 5th in the open division with the sole Jersey cow in the Walker herd.

Besides the Walkers, who will receive dual honors as Farmers of the Year and top quality producers in New York, Eastern will recognize top producers in Vermont and Pennsylvania, as well as seven others, to round out a top ten list.

For the fourth consecutive year, Bruce E. Bartley Jr. of Cogan Station, Pa. takes honors as the top quality producer in Pennsylvania.

Daniel N. Pest of Richmond, Vt. is the top quality producer in Vermont.

The other top ten quality farmers are:

* John & Gail Bunting, Treadwell, N.Y., the 1990 Farmers of the Year.
* Aaron and Anna Mary Lapp, Loganton, Pa.
* Phillip Reinhardt, Middletown, N.Y.
* Marianne and Charles Rogers, Cogan Station, Pa.
* Vollmans Dairy Farm, Trout Run, Pa.
* Frank E. Welcher, Newark, N.Y.
* Jeffrey and Karen Zuck, Myerstown, Pa.

The quality honorees were chosen after lab tests over a 12-month period showed that they had the best quality milk in the nine-state area in which the co-op operates.

Five good reasons to deworm your whole herd with Rumatel®

1. Worms are a whole-herd problem. They threaten the health and productivity of your young stock and milking herd alike.

2. Rumatel makes whole-herd deworming easy. You can effectively deworm calves, heifers, dry cows, lactating cows and bulls in one simple treatment (Baymix® requires six).

3. No milk discard. TBZ® forces you to dump eight milkings ($2,200 worth in a 100-cow herd averaging 50 lbs. of milk per cow per day, and at a milk price of $11/cwt.). With Rumatel you don't waste a drop.

4. No milk residues. Ivomec® may only legally be administered to males and pre-breeding weight heifers, while Rumatel may be safely fed to lactating cows at any time without risking milk residues!

5. Rumatel is extremely palatable. Unlike other in-feed dewormers, Rumatel doesn't make animals back off feed.

There's just no good reason to settle for incomplete or inconvenient deworming. Ask your feed supplier for Rumatel today.

Stops Worms, Not Milk, In One Day.

BARN PAINTING
Aim For The Best - In Coating Film Thickness

To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed.)

1. PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed The best method is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas. This is resurfacing!!!
2. BEST NEW START ON RESURFACED WOOD SIDING After spraying on this kind of barn paint or stain, take time to pay attention to brush out in all directions to create a film thickness that will prevent future peeling & resurfacing costs & effort This film will let excess moisture breathe through it Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10-15 years Southern exposures usually wear faster.

Livestock Ledger

Extension Livestock Specialist

LARGER COWS — LOWER FERTILITY

When it comes to conception, bigger is not necessarily better.

Research has shown that larger cows have lower pregnancy rates than their smaller herdmates, and that trend can be attributed to limited nutrient availability.

Scientists at the University of Arkansas found cows weighing 1,250 pounds required 18 percent more metabolizable energy and 10 percent more protein on a daily basis than their 950-pound herdmates. Without the extra nutrient requirements, the larger cows ignore energy needed for reproduction and instead concentrate on maintenance, growth, and lactation. This leads to a 3.6 percent decline in pregnancy rate in the larger cows for each 100 pounds of fall weight.

Results of the study show that as cow size increases, it may be necessary to use feed supplement, such as hay or range cubes. Any supplement fed should be high in crude protein and metabolizable energy to meet at least the maintenance and lactation requirements of the cows. This will lead to more available energy for reproduction, thus increasing pregnancy rates.

Hospital Pen Management

The hospital area of your feedyard may be as important to cattle recovery as your diagnosis and treatment program.

A good hospital facility should provide shelter and convenient access to feed and water for your cattle. The pens should be uncrowded and easily accessible from the treatment chute.

Proper sanitation of treatment equipment, pens, water troughs, feedbunks, and hay racks will prevent unnecessary infection and give your cattle a better chance of recovery. By penning according to disease problems and cleaning waterers daily, you reduce the likelihood of creating additional infection.

Cattle in your hospital facility should receive good quality hay free choice from a bunk, as well as an energy- and nutrient-dense feed ration. Provide the feed twice daily in quantities that the calves will clean up shortly before the next feeding.

Feeding Gilts — Prebreeding

Penn State graduate student Robert E. Mikesell reports on an interesting study at the University of Delaware that investigated the effect of feed intake of gilts during the period from 240 pounds until breeding on reproductive performance during the first two parities.

Forty-three crossbred gilts either remained on the self-feeder or were limit-fed six pounds per day of a corn-soy diet at the end of the finishing phase. All gilts were bred at the second observed heat, then treated and fed equally for the remainder of the study.

Self-fed gilts were fatter when weaned from their first litters and at day 110 of the second gestation period, but there were no differences in litter size, litter weight, or gilt body size at any time during the first two lactations. These results are in agreement with a Penn State study which showed no difference in ovulatory rate of self-fed vs. limit-fed gilts.

If we assume the self-fed gilts in the Delaware study ate an average of nine pounds of feed per day, were gaining 1.9 pounds per day, and were bred when they weighed 280 pounds, the self-fed gilts would require 63 pounds more feed than the limit-fed gilts during the prebreeding period. At $.075/pound of feed, limit feeding would save $4.73/gilt in feed costs with no change in reproductive performance.

Keep in mind that the Delaware trial was conducted with only 43 gilts. It is possible that a trial conducted with more pigs may show differences in reproductive performance. Also, gilts from heavy milking sow lines may be more apt to benefit from additional body condition at weaning.

Under conditions of these studies, there is no economic advantage to self-feeding gilts during the prebreeding period of subsequent reproductive performance.

Fine Grinding Hog Feed

Since feed costs represent 60-75 percent of overall production costs in a swine operation, anything a producer can do to improve feed utilization can have a significant impact on cost of production.

Generally speaking, the finer the particles, the more efficiently the feed will be utilized. This is because of the greater surface area that is exposed to digestive enzymes with a finer grind. Finer particle size also improves ease of handling and mixing characteristics.

There are some negative aspects of fine grinding, however. Grinding costs will be higher, particularly as fuel costs rise. There may be more bridging in bulk tanks and feeders, as well as more dust. Finely ground feed may play a role in gastric ulcers, and pigs may not eat extremely fine feed as readily. Therefore, the increased cost and potential problems of fine grinding must be offset by improved feed conversion.

Achieving smaller particle size is not too difficult. With roller mills, the rollers can be set closer together. A roller mill with a differential drive, which drives one roller faster than the other, gives a tearing action on the grain in addition to crushing. Roller corrugations should be checked and regrooved on a regular basis. With a hammer mill, hammers should be tuned or replaced when they become worn. The screen should also be replaced when the edges of the holes become rounded.

Proper grinding and mixing of feed does require some time and management. However, it should pay off in the long run by lowering production costs through improved efficiency.

Plan For Shepherd's Symposium

The sixth annual Keystone Shepherd's Symposium has been announced for November 22, 23, and 24 at the Ramada Inn, West Middlesex, Pa.

Don Bailey from Roseburg, Oregon will headline an impressive group of speakers on subjects ranging from Bailey's Disease diagnosis and recommended medications to ram health, wool marketing, alfalfa, scrapie control, carcass lamb evaluation, breeding soundness, dairy sheep, etc.

The Sunday breakfast topic will be "The Stockmen's Grass Farmer," presented by Allen Nation, editor of "Grassland Farming," Jackson, Miss. The event will also include the Lamb-O-Rama Festival, Make It Yourself With Wool Contest, and the Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen Contest. Preregistration deadline is November 4. Contact your local extension office for details and registration forms.

Silo Safety

Few farming operations provide as many opportunities for accidents as filling the silo.

The greatest risk stems from the operator being exposed to a number of moving machine parts in a relatively crowded work area. Many farmers take unnecessary chances. Under no circumstances can you justify entering a wagon or reaching into the unloading chute while the power is on.

If clogging occurs, disengage the PTO and stop the tractor. When the silo blower plugs up, do not climb into the hopper or use your hands or feet to force forage into the blower blades.

PTO shafts that drive the wagon and blower rotate 9 to 16 times per second. Even at slower speeds, no one can react fast enough to pull away once caught by the revolving shaft. Be careful!

Pennsylvania Holds First Forest Workshop

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The first Pennsylvania Forest Stewardship training workshop was recently held at three different locations to help landowners manage their woodlots.

Sponsored by the state Bureau of Forestry of the Department of Environmental Resources (DER), 235 professionals registered for the workshops which were held in Centre, Luzerne and Butler counties.

Pennsylvania's program is part of a national effort authorized by the 1990 Farm Bill and is administered through the federal forest service and directed by DER's forestry bureau.

The stewardship program is a federal cost-share and technical assistance program designed to help forest landowners manage their woodlots wisely. The national goal is to bring 25 million acres of private forestland under stewadship management during the next five years. Its other goal is to increase public awareness of how society depends on and benefits from healthy forests.

Those completing the training are qualified to prepare Forest Stewardship Management Plans and assist landowners in becoming forest stewards.

Landowners who become forest stewards are eligible to receive cost-share monies under the stewardship incentive program. This program is different from other forestry cost-share programs because money is available for management practices that do not involve timber management.

The training sessions focused on key fores stewardship concepts such as wildlife management, biological diversity, aesthetics, recreational opportunities and forestland planning.

Tim Nilan, of Forest Management Associates Inc., of New London, has completed the workshop. For more information, call Tim Nilan at (215) 869-8483, or call the state stewardship program at 1-800-235-WISE.

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Brad Linton's Maine-Anjou/Chianina/Angus middle weight market steer picked up grand champion steer honors at the Solanco Fair Steer Show Thursday night.

Brad, 15, Kirkwood, and a member of the Solanco FFA, with his steer named "Re-run," also picked up champion senior showman honors at the show.

Reserve champion market steer went to Jim Landis from the heavyweight division.

Judge Ken Winebark, Lebanon Co. agent, liked the grand champion heavyweight because of its muscling and thickness. "It's also a well-finished steer," he said.

There were 10 animals in the market class, and 11 exhibitors at the show.

Farmers Focus On Environment

READING (Berks Co.) — In their own quiet way, today's generation of farmers has adopted a land use ethic that is more responsive than ever before to a broad range of environmental concerns.

The reason is partly economic. A farmer who abuses his land will someday find himself with unproductive fields and water that's unfit for his family and his animals to drink.

In addition to the economic motives, many farmers would name aesthetic and even spiritual reasons for taking care of the land they till. But more and more would tell you there are now legal issues to be considered whenever a farmer does something that affects the environment.

Take the case of Richard and Nelson Troutman, brothers who farm near Richland in Berks County, Pa. In the summer of 1989, diesel fuel somehow siphoned out of an above-ground storage tank next to their dairy barn. It flowed directly into a drain field and then into a nearby creek.

The Troutmans weren't aware of the mishap until a representative of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission drove into their lane and told them he had traced a source of pollution back to their farm.

Although the fuel spill was an accident, the Troutmans paid an automatic $1,000 fine for polluting a Pennsylvania stream. They also paid another $9,000 to clean up the stream and to dispose of contaminated soil.

The incident exacted as much of a toll on their peace of mind as it did on their bank account. The day after the spill was discovered, a group of some 20 people — regulators, enforcement officials, cleanup specialists — were all milling around the scene of the spill.

Details of what happened to the Troutmans are featured in the latest edition of Meridian Bank's Ag Letter, which is mailed regularly to farmers and agribusinesses in Meridian's service area. Meridian is one of the largest ag lenders in the Northeast.

Along with an account of the Troutmans' troubles, the Ag Letter recounts a discussion between Clay Thomson, a Meridian ag lender, and Walter Satterthwaite. Satterthwaite owns an environmental consulting firm in West Chester and has done a lot of work with farm properties.

There's also a short item from the regulator's point of view. Richard Pfaehler, who works for the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources in Berks County, said his department's philosophy is to use dialog and persuasion as the tools of first resort in dealing with environmental infractions.

For a free copy of the latest issue of Ag Letter, write to Meridian Bank, Ag Lending Department, SQ0830, P.O. Box 1102, Reading, PA 19603, or call (800) 222-2150.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Dusk was fast fading to outright dark when the last barn chore had been finished. Assorted small delays, coupled with seasonably-high numbers of baby calves to be tended pushed feeding wrap-up later than usual.

And the hectic day had been yet another in a string of ones even busier than normal, due to it being "fair" week. The combination of hunger pangs and knowledge that I faced still at least another hour at the computer added up to an emotional-physical craving.

"Let's eat!" the stomach and mind screamed in duet.

Our main hot, cooked meal of the day is at noon. From there on, it's every mouth for himself. A sandwich or soup usually suffices before milking. They might opt for a snack of milk and cookies between loads of silage or passing through the kitchen en route to moving cattle or baling hay.

And, by past chore time, anything that doesn't run out of the kitchen may get slapped between two slices of bread.

But what to fuel a hungry stomach and propel reluctant fingers back into action well after dark? Ahhh, a cup of hot, steaming mint tea.

Mint tea is one of my "comfort" foods.

Psychologically speaking, mint tea as comfort food is probably deep-rooted in my early childhood. A favorite remedy for babies' tummyaches years ago was "catnip" tea, one of the various mints that grows around this area like weeds. I suspect I guzzled my share of this grumpy-baby remedy.

Several mints thrive along the creek in the meadow, peppermints and balsam, and a sharp, pungent, sinus-opening, red-stemmed variety. Most of the family likes a combination of them brewed, then chilled. My preference for mint teas is served steaming hot, a comforting, fragrant cup to wrap cold hands around on a chilly night or after morning chores.

A commercial mint tea I stumbled onto some time ago is even better than our own, available at all seasons - and not tramped through by a herd of heifers. Comfort food in a neat, tidy, single-serving bag.

Hot chocolate is another comfort food, a perennial snow-season favorite. As kids, we always needed a marshallow or two on top. This was real tasty when consumed with a sandwich spread thick with peanut butter and marshmallow. Calories? Who counted calories at age 10?

Microwaves make hot chocolate much easier than stove-top preparation. And, while I usually can forego the marshmallows, a lifelong addiction to peanut butter shows no sign of ever going away. Another comfort food, maybe?

And what about soup? Didn't your mother feed you soup on those wintry days when you had the sniffles? A food that simmered maybe for hours on the back of the stove, filling the kitchen with a mouth-watering aroma and temporarily soothed your sore throat and warmed your feverish chills.

Mom's homemade cream of tomato, made with tomaties canned from our own garden, was her standard pick-me-up after one of those flu bugs made its rounds in the family. Our offspring could never be persuaded to eat much tomato soup.

They prefer their tomatoes on pizza. Come to think of it, given a choice, I'll pick pizza over tomato soup, too. Any day.

But the ultimate comfort food in this household - hands down - is ice cream. The National Dairy Board runs a commercial noting that "there's something about ice cream." It could have been filmed here. Hot weather, cold weather, it doesn't matter. An evening absent a little snack of ice cream, a family gathering or renunion without it, just doesn't seem complete. And ice cream goes with just about anything...pretzels, potato chips (the Farmer's favorite comfort food), cheese curls, and all that good snack stuff.

Well, maybe not ice cream with hot, mint tea. Some comfort foods are really best savored alone.

Allow at least a few minutes between courses.

PDPP Schedules Promoters' Workshops

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In an effort to provide new and revised information to Pennsylvania dairy promoters, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program has scheduled a week-long series of workshops during the week of September 30, to October 5. These meetings, which started in 1989, are entirely sponsored by the PDPP and were initiated to aid local promotion efforts statewide.

"The PDPP has been a solid supporter of local promotion efforts in the state and as a part of this commitment, we have made educational workshops a main part of our activities," said Betsy Dupuis, PDPP promotions specialist. "These meetings provide hands-on activities as well as informational sessions designed to help local promoters become even more effective. We know that local promotion activities do help our total promotion effort and also get more dairy farmers and industry personnel involved in the promotion of their products."

The workshops include programs on working with food service personnel, volunteer recruitment, fundinq sources, effective promotions, and up-to-date dairy marketing information. In addition at each workshop, local promoters will be able to share their promotion ideas and problems with others in attendance.

The workshop dates and locations are as follows: Monday, September 30, Holiday Inn, Clarion; Tuesday, October 1, Days Inn, New Stanton; Wednesday, October 2, Zimm's Restaurant, State College; Thursday, October 3, Hotel Wyalusing, Wyalusing (Bradford County); Friday, October 4, Holiday Inn, Reading/Lancaster (PA Turnpike); and Saturday, October 5, Embers Quality Inn, Carlisle.

All county promotion committees desiring funding for the January to June, funding period must attend these meetings to receive funding applications and information. The meetings will run from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. with lunch included. All persons attending the meetings will receive a complete package of materials used at the workshop.

Persons interested in attending can send their name, county, address, and a $5 refundable deposit to: Workshops, PDPP, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA, 17110-9408. Additional information is available by calling (717) 787-6903.

Marian Whetstone and Mabel Jordan help Marian's grandson display his hand-knit sweater.

Limited Vision Doesn't Keep These Women From Knitting Top Quality Garments

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Mabel Jordan is one of those ladies who doesn't believe in idle hands.

Six years ago, she was a widow, living on a small farm near Bedford and exploring the many craft interests she had developed throughout life.

When a local craft store approached her to give knitting lessons, she was quite willing to take on the challenge. What she didn't realize was that her first two students were going to be legally blind.

It was Lois Holleran, a lady with only 25 percent of her vision, who had persuaded Marian Whetstone, with only 3 percent of her vision to try taking lessons. "We thought we could learn in two lessons." Lois laughs now.

Lois and Marian have been to Beacon Lodge Summer Camp for the Blind and, there, had made friends with another blind friend who knitted.

"If she could do it I figured we could to." Lois laughs.

Since that time, all of the ladies in Mabel's knitting class have gone to the Beacon Lodge, compliments of the local Lions Clubs.

Those two lessons have turned into more than 300, and, Mabel is still teaching on a weekly basis.

There are plenty of finished products and some of them won blue, red, and white ribbons in this year's Bedford County Fair. This feat is not a first for these ladies with limited vision. They have been entering knitted projects in the fair for several years and winning prizes.

Since the lessons began, Bernetta Smouse has also joined the group. At 82, she isn't about to sit in a rocking chair and do nothing. Instead, she has put her nimble fingers to work knitting mittens for the county's needy children and warm booties for guests in Cumberland and Hollidaysburg nursing homes. She has received special honors from RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Persons) for her efforts.

Her vision is 200/400 and Bernetta says she has been aided greatly by special glasses purchased from an optometrist in State College.

Most of Bernetta's creations become gifts as do those of Lois and Marian. The women knit sweaters in all styles and colors. A recent trendy project has been to cut the neckline from sweatshirts, hem them, and then add a knitted turtleneck.

This year, Lois won her first blue ribbon at the fair although she has won other colors in the years past. "My only problem is not having enough time to knit." she says.

She has two grandsons who receive a lot of her sweaters and an aunt in South Carolina is also grateful for her creations.

Marian, with the most limited vision, does all of her work by touch.

"I go on a lot of bus trips," Marian says. "And, when I knit going through a tunnel, no one can understand how I see what I am doing. Truth is, I often knit in the dark."

Marian also babysits her two-year-old grandson and plays the piano and organ at church.

"Keeping the baby isn't difficult," she explains."After all, I raised my own children when I couldn't see. I don't always get his face perfectly clean, but that's about the worst problem I have."

Meanwhile, Mabel oversees all of the work. "When I find a mistake, I rip it out," she says.

Mabel has also had some major changes in her life in the last six years. She has married a local lawyer and moved into town. She has kept her farm, however, and has a hired farmer who raises dairy cows, chickens, and has two draft horses.

She admits she was a little scared when two legally blind ladies showed up for her first class. "But, I just did the best I could," she remembers. "I worked by trial and error. Sometimes I would stand behind them and work over their shoulders to get a feel for what they were doing."

"As for our future, we may go to our graves knitting, "Mabel said.

Lois Holleran works on a Christmas project while some of her finished products are on the table.

Barnetta Smouse has been recognized by RSVP for her donation of mittens and slippers to charities.

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

It is time for the grills to be put away for the winter and to get down to something else besides grilled hamburgers. An inexpensive piece of meat is chicken. Here are some tips for microwaving chicken. Chicken skin will not get crisp in the microwave as it does in conventional cooking. Therefore, in many recipes, such as the Chuck Wagon Drumsticks, it is best to remove the skin before cooking. Make a slit all the way around the small bone end of the drumstick, then slit the skin lengthwise down the entire drumstick. Starting at this slit, pull the skin off the chicken leg. Skinned chicken has fewer calories and "marries" more readily with sauces and seasonings. Even if you do skin your chicken pieces, wings aren't worth the effort. When cooking wings or any chicken pieces with the skin on, remember to make a small slit in the skin of each piece. Chicken cooks so quickly in the microwave that the skin may burst with a loud popping noise. Slitting the skin helps prevent this by venting the steam build-up. However, don't be surprised if you still hear an occasional pop. On whole birds, make an unobtrusive slit on the back of the bird.

Chuck Wagon Drumsticks

1 (16 oz.) can pork and beans
2 tablespoons canned cooked bacon bits
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon instant minced onion
1 teaspoon mustard
4 chicken drumsticks - skinned
¼ cup bottled barbecue sauce
1 cup frozen whole kernel corn
2 teaspoons butter
½ teaspoon paprika
Baking dish - 9 inch pie plate
Bake time at high - 16 to 18 minutes.

Combine pork and beans with seasonings right in the baking dish, then top with skinned chicken drumsticks. Arrange the drumsticks with the thickest portion toward the outside of the dish. Use a spoke pattern for a round dish or a ladder design for a rectangular dish. Lift legs up to coat on all sides with sauce. Spoon frozen whole kernel corn between the drumsticks. Cut butter or margarine in small bits over the corn. Sprinkle the casserole with paprika. Microwave uncovered so the barbeque sauce won't run off the chicken.

For a chocolate cate why not try Mix in the Dish Chocolate Cake? It is fast and easy.

Chocolate Cake

1 cup all purpose flour
⅔ cup brown sugar
¼ cup unsweetened cocoa powder
¾ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ cup vegetable oil
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
⅔ cup milk
Use an eight-inch baking dish.
Time cook at 30 percent for 6 minutes.
Time cook 3½ to 4 minutes at high.

In a round 8-inch baking dish, combine flour, brown sugar, cocoa powder, baking soda and salt; mix well. Make a well in center of dry ingredients. Add in order: lemon juice, oil, egg and vanilla to well. Stir with a fork until all ingredients are moistened. Gradually add milk. Stir slowly to blend, then mix with a fork until batter is smooth and well mixed. Microwave, uncovered at 30 (Medium low) for 6 minutes. Give dish a quarter turn once. When done top of cake will be slightly moist and spring back when touched in center. A wooden pick inserted in center of cake sould come out clean. Cool on wire rack. Frost if desired.

For the kids to do:

Baked Apple

1 baking apple
1 teaspoon raisins
1 teaspoon brown sugar
Dash ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon butter or margarine.

Wash and core apple. Slice off a thin circle of peel about ½ inch from top of apple.

In a small bowl or custard cup, place apple. Place raisins and brown sugar in cavity of apple. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Top with butter.

Microwave, covered for 2 minutes.

Let stand, covered for 2 minutes before eating. Serves 1.

PDPP Sponsors Sports Network

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — For a seventh consecutive year, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and Penn State Sports have created a winning team for Pennsylvania's dairy farmers. The Penn State Sports Network, considered one of the premier college sports networks, covers the entire state of Pennsylvania with broadcasts of Penn State football and basketball.

"We are looking forward to a exciting season with Penn State," said Brian Ross, PDPP program manager. "Penn State and the dairy industry are a strong winning combination that will only further our efforts to promote dairy products. This campaign is a great addition to our promotion activities conducted on behalf of the Pennsylvania dairy farmers."

The PDPP has been a solid supporter of the network and continues its support this year with advertisements focused at the true sports fan. The advertisements not only promote fluid milk and its great attributes but also tie into current promotions conducted for fall cheese and the holidays.

The network includes more than 60 radio stations, both AM and FM, where Penn State fans can listen to the Nittany Lions roar. Both the football and basketball teams' games will be aired on the network during the 1991-92 season. On the football side, George Paterno, the coach's brother, and Bill Zimpfer, will be providing the color analysis and play-by-play. For basketball, the Lions' commentators will be Steve Jones and Frank Giardina.

As part of the promotional campaign with Penn State, the PDPP and other commodity organizations will be sponsoring a joint tailgate on Saturday, September 28, at Beaver Stadium. In addition, the PDPP will sponsor the fourth annual Dairy Gridiron Classic at Memorial Stadium on November 9. Either Maryland or Penn State University will walk away with $1,000 in scholarship monies for dairy and food science students.

POISON WATCH: A YEAR ROUND EFFORT

Are you watching your young household "helpers" while you are doing your fall cleaning? Keep an eye on your keen-eyed youngsters, whose busy hands are always investigating. While clearing storage shelves of old or unused products, make sure your helpful young ones are at a safe distance from your work area, and, more important, that they do not retrieve and play with articles carefully earmarked for the trash bag. If they are helping in your clean up, take the opportunity to talk about safe cleaning practices and proper disposal methods.

Protecting children from accidental poisoning is virtually a round-the-clock effort. However, according to Dr. Jay M. Arena, M.D., a pediatrician and authority on the prevention of childhood injury, it is a relatively simple task if certain guidelines are followed. In his monograph, Your Child and Household Safety, Dr. Arena explains:

"The age group most frequently involved in poisoning is under five. It has been well documented that 75 percent of all poisonings in small children are caused by insight drugs or household agents. This means that three out of four of these tragic events could have been prevented by just one very simple action—putting all drugs and household agents out of sight and out of reach of children."

Follow these general rules for poison prevention:

1. Read the label on every product you buy and reread before each use.

2. Keep all medicines and household products in locked cabinets.

3. After using household products, do not leave them open or within reach of children. If you have to leave the room even for an instant, cap all products in use. The safest method is to recap or close all products after dispensing the needed amount.

4. Store medicines and household products separately, in locked cabinets. Keep them away from all foods.

5. Keep all medicines, drugs and other household chemicals in their original containers with labels intact. Accidents happen when such materials are placed in containers which children associate with food and drink. For example, a child might think gasoline is a beverage if it is put into a soda can or bottle.

6. Clean out medicine cabinets periodically. Discard prescription medicines when the illness for which they were prescribed has run its course. Dispose of old medicines by flushing them down the drain. Rinse out empty containers before putting them in the trash.

7. Teach children to respect medicines as an aid when necessary to good health. Never refer to medicine as "candy." Give medicine in a business-like manner; the dispensing and taking of medicine should not be made into a game.

In addition to the above suggestions, follow the following guidelines for the storage and disposal of home and garden pesticides:

1. Always read the label before every use. Pesticides should be used for the purpose indicated on the federally approved label.

2. Store lawn and garden pesticides in a safe place outside the house under lock and key. Pesticides for indoor use should be kept in locked cabinets away from children.

3. Until they can be properly disposed of, pesticide materials or containers must be stored in a way that will assure the greatest possible protection to people, animals and the environment.

4. Be sure that closures are tight and containers intact when stored. Dispose of leaking containers immediately. Transfer the product carefully to a sealable container. Label it with the name of the product and ingredient statement (usually printed on the front of the label) and arrange for its disposal following approved local procedures.

Better Kid Care

CLEARFIELD (Clearfield Co.) — Descipline varies from family to family; which makes it a particular concern to family day care providers. Effective discipline helps a child learn what behaviors are acceptable and that there are consequences to misbehavior.

If you provide care for children, plan to attend the September 25 workshop "Discipline and Guidance." The session will be held in the restaurant/dining area of the Clearfield County Vo-Tech School, from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m.

The workshop will present the differences between discipline and punishment. What types of behavior to expect from children of different age levels will be detailed. The procedure on setting rules; and how rewards work and their benefits will be discussed.

"Discipline and Guidance" is sponsored by the Clearfield and Jefferson Counties Cooperative Extension. There is no fee for the workshop, but you will need to register by calling either Andrea Bressler at (814) 765-7878 or Nancy Covert at (814) 849-7361.

CHELATION THERAPY

THIS MAY BE YOUR ANSWER TO: Heart Problems, High Blood Pressure, Poor Circulation, Arthritis, Diabetes, Leg Cramps, Numbness, Tingling, Cold Hands And Feet & Atherosclerosis.

Dear Golden Pride:
I am a physician. For more than 40 years, I was a staff member of a large teaching hospital. Much of my effort was devoted to patient diagnostic clinics Also, I taught hundreds of medical students, doctors, and other health science professionals.
Early in my career, I had episodes of high blood pressure. These increased in frequency and severity to a point where my doctors started me on medication some 38 years ago. These medications were changed as serious untoward reactions dictated. On one occasion, I developed signs of diabetes due to the medications. In addition, the control of my blood pressure was less than desirable in spite of the fact that over the 38 years I was given most of the types of blood pressure medicines.
A little over a year ago, Harry Hersey came to speak at a Golden Pride meeting which we heard about on a local radio station. I attended the meeting and was so impressed that I began taking Formulas #1 and #3. A few months later Formula #7 was introduced and I added it into my routine. After about one month, I had my cholesterol level tested and found it to be in the normal range and my blood pressure had also leveled off to normal. Normal blood pressure for the first time in my adult life seemed miraculous and with no side effects!
I have been pleased with the other FORMULAS FOR HEALTH as well, especially Propolis, which taken as a preventative to infection has saved me and my family from many days of colds and flu. It is the antibiotic of choice, definitely.
Dorin L. Hinerman, M.D.

Dear Golden Pride:
I am a diabetic. I had severe pains in my legs and could hardly touch them. My feet were completely black from sugar diabetes. I had to go to a diabetic clinic in... I was taking 120 units of insulin per day.
I am taking Golden Pride's Formula #1 - one teaspoon each day. When my sugar started coming down, I took off one unit in the morning and one unit at night. Initially, my sugar count went up in the beginning of taking Formula #1. I am down to 80 units now. MY FEET ARE COMPLETELY NORMAL. No more black legs and feet No more fear of amputation!
I had arthritis so bad I couldn't even put a hand on my wrist watch because of so much pain. Now you can squeeze may hand and no arthritis pain I am very thankful for Golden Pride.

Two Apples A Day Gets The Doctor's Ok

Two apples a day? This new twist on an old saying may be one of the easiest ways for Americans to meet the need for more fruits and vegetables in their diets. In a recent report, the Department of Health and Human Services recommends five servings of fruits and vegetables a day. So make two of the five servings apples and apple products.

When it comes down to nutrition, apples get high marks for fiber — the snappy crunch reflects an apple's high fiber content of more than 4 grams. The insoluble fiber found in apples is important in cancer prevention.

Apples fill the nutrition prescription for what they don't have as well. Apples have almost no fat (0.5 grams — that's about 4 calories).

Apples weigh in about 80 calories and contain Vitamin C and potassium.

With 2,500 varieties of apples and the many ways apples and apple products can be served, two apples a day makes healthy eating a snap.

Although apples have been used throughout time, today's apple is much larger and sweeter than centuries ago. The first apples grown in this country were European varieties, brought over by the early American colonists. It was John Chapman, alias Johnny Appleseed, who spread apple seeds and created the first orchards in the East and Midwest.

More than 2,500 varieties of apples are available today. To learn about the varieties grown in your state, contact your county extension office for a brochure that describes the characteristics and the best uses.

Readers can receive a free brochure that describes the nutritious benefits of apples and snack apple tips for healthy low-fat eating. Send a stamped self-addressed business size envelope to International Apple Institute Brochure Offer, P.O. Box 1137, McLean, Va. 221011.

Apple Extravaganza Celebrates Fall Harvest, 50th Anniversary

West Chester (Chester Co.) — The annual Apple Extravaganza and Craft Show marks the start of the fall harvest of apples and pumpkins at Highland Orchards. These events held on September 21 and 22 mark the Orchard's 50th anniversary.

Sharon Hodge, craft show coordinator said that Pennsylvania and New Jersey crafters will show and offer for sale their handmade items including woodwork, dried flowers, baskets, stuffed fabric, miniatures, pencil/pastel portraits and much more.

Intriqued, this little girl watches her arm as a worker etches a face on it.

These folks take a break while listening to country music and story telling at the Apple Extravaganza.

Other special activities on the farm include a Pedal Tractor Pull for children ages 3 through 10 on Saturday and Sunday at 1 p.m. Free registration will begin at 10 a.m. both days. Face painting, scarecrow making, pony rides, hayrides, farm animals and lots of healthful foods will be available both days.

Demonstrations of cider pressing, apple peeling, coring equipment, and apple sauce making will be given through out the weekend.

Country and folk music will be performed by Charlie and Friends on Saturday afternoon from 1 to 4 p.m. On Sunday afternoon country and folk music will be performed by Jens and Brandywine Friends from noon to 4. Also on Sunday Sandy Lewis, a musical storyteller, will perform from 1 to 4.

"Apple picking this year is excellent. This is the best crop of apples we've had in several years" said Stuart Constable, Highland Orchards' farm production manager. Red Delicious, Golden Delicious, Empire and Jonagold will be available to pick the weekend of the festival. Stayman, a tart apple, Ida Red and Mutsu, a large firm yellow apple will be available the following weedend. Winesaps, Red Romes and Granny Smith will be available to pick in Mid-October.

Highland Orchards is a family owned and managed business in West Bradford Township. More than 350 acres of fruits and vegetables are grown. In season the public is invited to pick fresh crops from the tree or vine. The family operates a Farm Market and bakery on the farm.

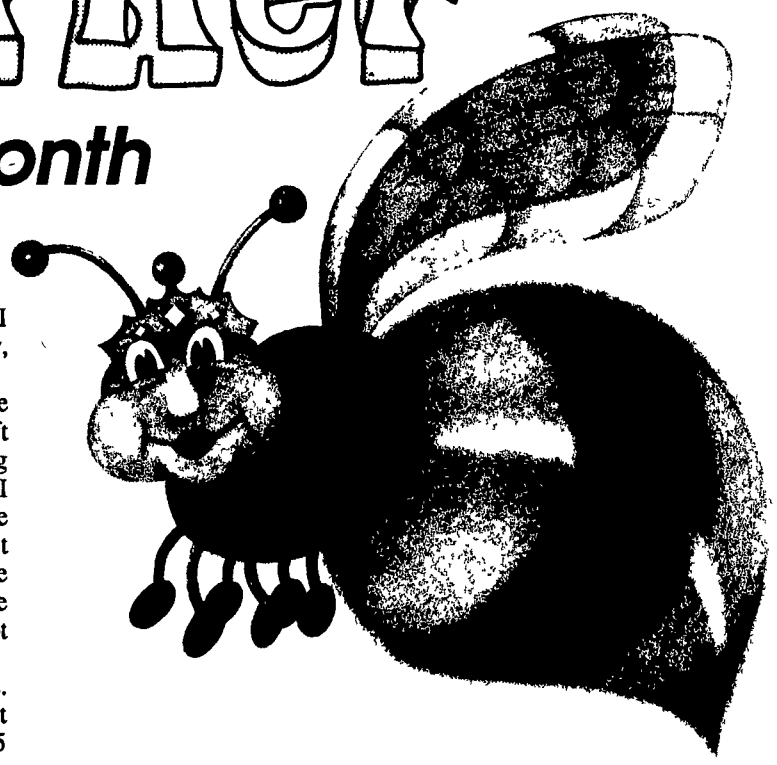
Queenie Bee Talks About A Month In The Life Of A Queen



Honey, if you think I was born a queen, you're dead wrong.

Let me tell you, in the honey bee society, the road to royalty is long and hard — and completely dependent on chance.

We all began the same in the hive kept by the human, as tiny larvae, fertilized because our mother, the prize queen, met once with a few drones.

My first waking moment was in a crowded hive where all of these nurse bees were feeding us. What a sight. They dribbled so much of this liquid food — a mixture of brood food and royal jelly — down the walls of our cells that we were forced to swim in it. (I got lucky and kept receiving the royal jelly. Those whod didn't were destined for worker bee-dom.)

Two days passed and I was moved in a cold metal spoon to a small wax room with thick walls on all sides, but no ceilings. This they call a "queen cup." I spent three days here.

Then 60 of us "pre-queens" were placed into a huge and frantic queenless hive. (I know now that the queen-in-residence was simply confined to a lower section of the hive.) This was a "cell-builder" hive. Nine days of obsessive feeding ensued. On the last day, the nurse bees made almost 3,500 different feeding visits to me (more than I cared to stomach) and then sealed my cell.

Next came two days of warmth. I was in some sort of heated cabinet. Luckily I stayed dormant in this stage. Some of the queen bees-to-be got out of their cells in this cabinet and were killed by the humans.

Why, you ask? Because queen bees are indeed rulers: we thrive on absolute power and behead those who challenge our royalness. The humans had to kill the freed queens before the queens killed the rest of us.

After the warmth, I was taken to the queen mating yard and put into a small hive — they call this a "mating nuc" — about the size of a human's shoe box. From there I experienced my first, and only, taste of freedom.

As soon as I ate and took note of where my new home was, I left on my first flight — my mating flight. It was hot and somehow I knew that I needed to head for the "drone zone," which hovers about 35 feet above the ground. The moment I reached the zone, there were hundreds of drones in hot pursuit of me.

Well, I won't go into the details. Just know that after this one flight — where I met up with some 15 drones — all my eggs will be fertilized for life.

Since a few days after my mating flight, I've been here at the hive performing my duty of laying eggs — lots of them. I average about 1,000 eggs a day, which equals my own weight!

So, please, the next time you think of a queen bee as someone who lives her life with red carpet treatment and no work, think again!

Latest Buzz On Honey Bees

When the town of Combsville, USA, heard that the honey bee and its pollination work is worth $9.7 billion to agriculture, it began a scheme to cash in on the loot. Its zealous citizens buzzed all the flowers in the vicinity. They used toothpicks to collect pollen and packed the pollen into hexagonal honeycomb imitations. But to no avail.

Even the most eager wannabee can't do what the honey bee does.

That's not to say the honey bee's work is easy for the honey bee, either. It takes 55,000 miles of exhausting flight, buzzing over two million flowers to collect over 40,000 loads of nectar and pollen, just to make one pound of honey.

However misdirected, the Combsville folks do understand the worth of this honey — beyond the delicious taste. In buzzing those two million blossoms, many of them belonging to fruit trees and vegetables, the honey bee is also pollinating them, ensuring luscious, plentiful produce all across the country.

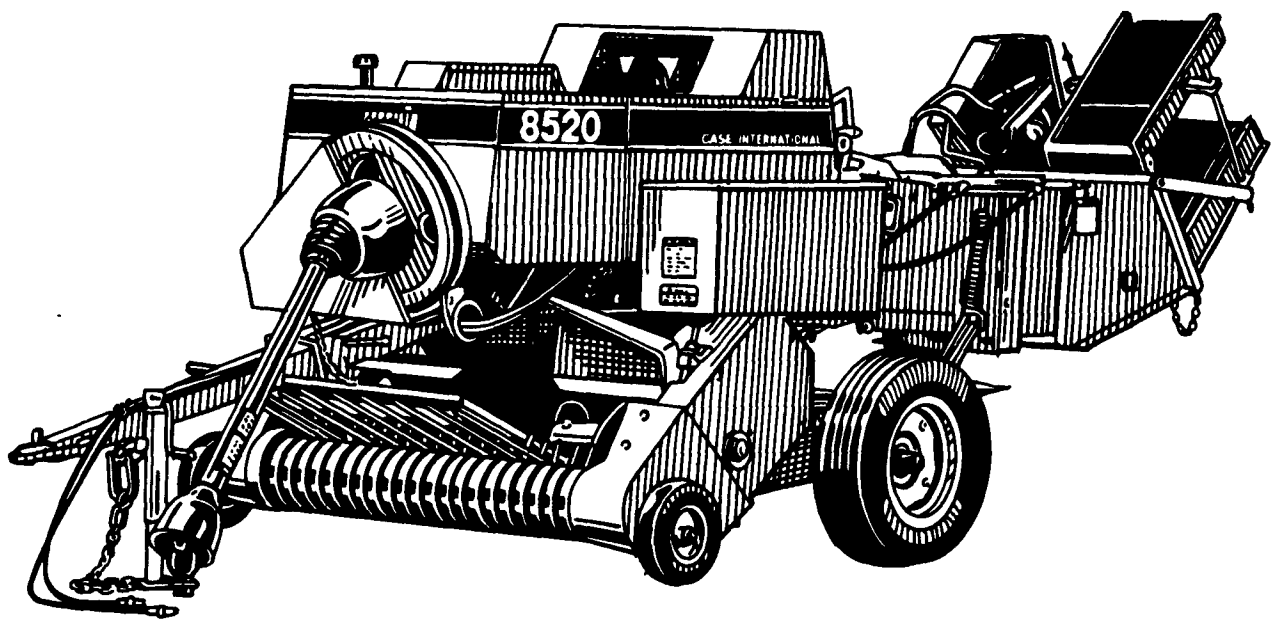
OUTSTANDING BALER PERFORMANCE MEANS GREATER NUTRITION AT AN ECONOMICAL PRICE



Case International 8520/8530 Rectangular Balers

These two balers both feature the Case IH center line design. Eliminates turning corners with the crop to get it into the bale chamber, as is common with conventional designs. This saves valuable protein-rich leaves. Also saves time because you don't have to change from field to road position for transport.

Other outstanding features are:

- Low-profile baler design provides excellent visibility to the rear of the baler
- Low-profile pickup . . . reduces crop lifting height, saving nutritious leaves
- Hay goes straight into the unique prepacker chamber . . . regardless of windrow size . . . for uniform flake and bale density

J. Myron Stoltzfus shows off the old-fashioned sweet balogna that won the grand champion award in national competition. The original recipe dates back three generations and has helped Stoltzfus to grow and remain strong in the meat industry.

Old-Fashioned Sweet Bologna Brings Fame To Stoltzfus Meats

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — Those who drive along Route 772 in Intercourse often get a whiff of smoking meat. The aroma that floats over the Herford steer perched on top of Stoltzfus Meats, Inc., comes from the company's prize-winning sweet bologna.

For three generations, Stoltzfus Meats have been making their old-fashioned sweet bologna the same way. This year, for the first time, the company entered the bologna in national competition. It swept the grand championship out of hundreds of entries at the American Cured Meat Championships held in Kansas City, Mo.

In addition, Stoltzfus's ring bologna, developed about 10 years ago, took the reserve championship.

"We've been going to the national conventions for years," said J. Myron Stoltzfus, "but this was the first time that we entered anything."

The American Association of Meat Processors is the nation's largest trade organization representing small businessmen in the meat/food industry. Twelve judges from different states judged entries on the basis of aroma, flavor, eye appeal, shape, and texture.

Stoltzfus's Meats was started by Myron's dad, Amos, in the 1950s.

"He went to market during the depression years," Stoltzfus said. "In the beginning, he butchered only enough meat to take to market."

Today, Stoltzfus Meats has a store, restaurant, butcher shop, and smokehouses located on the original property. But the backbone of their business remains the farmers' markets.

"We think farmers' markets are our niche," Stoltzfus said. "People come to Lancaster County to taste our good food, so it stands to reason that when we take what is good out of Lancaster County into other states that they love it."

Much of Stoltzfus's Meats are sold by other standholders who buy it wholesale for markets in New York, Maryland, and Delaware.

Stoltzfus Meats slaughters about 100 hogs and 10 steers weekly. They raise their own hogs on a Berks County farm and purchase steers from local farmers.

Stoltzfus and his brother, Ken, who run the businesses are proud that they offer the finest meats.

"If you don't start with something good, you can't end up with good, wholesome products," Stoltzfus said.

From the beginning, Stoltzfus Meats used good raw lean meat for their bologna, ring bologna, sausage, scrapple, and other meats.

"We don't promote our products as low-fat, but we are looking into doing it in the future," Stoltzfus said. "Prelimentary tests show the meat is high in protein and lower in fat, but we need to find out exactly how much lower."

The company's secret spices and flavorings are top of the line. Hickory, oak, and cherry woods are used for that old-fashioned smoked flavor.

Although smokehouses from Germany (a steel and block structure with temperature control and timers) are used for ring bologna, the sweet bologna is still smoked the old-fashioned way with the heat and smoke controlled manually.

"We think that is what gives bologna its unique flavor. You need a denser smoke that gives a good, rich, but not burnt flavor," Stoltzfus said. "Although we are working on it, we haven't been able to duplicate that flavor in automatically controlled smokehouses."

The company smokes about 600 pounds of sweet balonga weekly and 1,500 pounds of ring balonga.

"We don't make a lot of different projects," Stoltzfus said. "But what we do, we do well. We might cost more, but you get what you pay for."

Stoltzfus has two brothers and two sisters who either work or have worked in the family business. "We started when we were young, but when you work on concrete floors and are in and out of the cooler, it takes its toll. We all have some trouble with arthritis," he said.

While many butcher shops have gone out of business, as many as a 3.3 decrease last year, Stoltzfus Meats have shown steady growth. They became USDA approved in 1972. They increased the slaughter floor, the main processing area, offices, store, and restaurant.

"Many businesses go out because it is difficult to maintain government standards. The stringent regulations are often not worth the money it takes to change things so they go out of business," Stoltzfus said.

"When you're in the meat business, you got to enjoy it," said Stoltzfus. "And I do. I've been eating our meats since I was born, and I never get tired of them. I eat as many bologna sandwiches as the next fellow. I even enjoy tasting competitors' meats."

The restaurant, opened in 1968, caters to the tourist trade. It is open May 1 through November 1. Family style meals are served using Stoltzfus's meats. One of Myron's sister manages the restaurant since her parents retired three years ago.

The retail store is opened Thursday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Friday, from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Saturday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information, call (717) 768-7166.

Jim Bob's Place Where You Can't Have Cows Without Ice Cream

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PA FURNACE (Centre Co.) — So what does one of Centre County's most eligible bachelor farmers do in his spare time?

Make ice cream—prize-winning ice cream that is.

Jim Harper of Pennylvania Furnace has been mixing up his own ice cream recipes since he was 13 years old. Now he's 28. And, he doesn't plan to stop—just get better.

"Ice cream making is a tradition that I learned from my grandparents and I would like to continue it," Harper said. "After all, you can't have cows without ice cream."

Every Sunday afternoon was ice cream making day at his grandparents. Now, Harper continues that tradition by making ice cream at least once a week.

For years, his ice cream making was strickly a hobby enjoyed by his friends and neighbors. Last year, Harper heard about the ice cream churn-off held during Ag Progress days in August. With his Super-Fudge Chunk, Harper churned his way to the $300 top prize in the first contest he ever entered.

With the prize money, Harper took an ice cream course sponsored by Penn State. There, he learned in-depth aspects of balancing ingredients and the importance of pasteurizing and homogenizing the ingredients.

"It's one thing to have a recipe, it's another to make it properly," Harper said.

He learned things such as too much sugar will keep ice cream from freezing.

While many people succumb to using electric ice cream freezers, Harper maintains that hand churning produces a creamier texture. And for him, only one brand of ice cream maker meets his standards—White Mountain.

For beginners, Harper recommends that the make small batches of ice cream. "Stick with flavors you know like chocolate that way you can adjust the flavor if it's too strong or too sweet," he said.

Harper, who farms with his dad, Dean, on 156 acres near State College, raises soybeans and barley. After selling the dairy herd several years ago, the Harpers are now getting back into dairying. They have 11 cows, 65 pigs, and 120 layers. When asked which animals he likes best, Harper said, "Chickens don't tramp on your feet like cows or upset their troughs like pigs, but I guess I have to say that I like the combination."

In addition to learning the basics of ice cream making, sales and distribution were also taught during the 10 day course taught at the Penn State. Most of Harper's classmates were involved with big ice cream companies. "I learned that ice cream must be consistent and be a quality product when you market it," Harper said.

He and his classmates taste-tested ice cream. According to Harper, those low-fat versions aren't worth his efforts. He appreciates the finest, richest ingredients in his ice cream.

When it comes to ice cream, Harper admits personal preferences enter in. This year, he was disappointed that his entry in the Ag Progress Day's competition only garnered him a fourth place because one of the judges thought his ice cream had too much peanut butter.

"It doesn't," he and those who love peanut butter ice cream insist. But Harper concedes, "Some people don't like certain flavors and peanut butter is one of those flavors that a different set of judges might have come up with a different set of winners.

Churing by hand is hard work, but Harper said, "It makes it all worthwhile when strangers tell me, "I remember your ice cream from last year — it was the best I've ever tasted."

Harper hopes for the opportunity to hear those words more and more when his dream of combining farming with ice cream making comes true.

Harper has a dream of turning his gourmet ice cream into a Ben and Jerry's operation named Jim Bob's Super Ice Cream.

"I'd like to open an ice cream parlor on the farm. People could visit the farm and and eat some of my ice cream," Harper said.

Until you have the opportunity to try Harper's ice cream made fresh on the farm, try these two prize-winning recipes created by Jim Harper.

JIM BOB'S PA SUPER FUDGE CHUNK

In your ice cream container, mix the first eight ingredients with a wire whisk. Put container in the ice cream bucket and fill one half full with ice then put in ¼ pound salt and more ice until it reaches the top. Churn. When ice cream begins to turn hard, add walnuts, white chocolate chunks and pecans. Turn until hard.

PEANUT BUTTER CHOCOLATE FLAKE

1.5 quarts cream
2 cups sugar
14 ounces sweetened condensed milk
12 ounces evaporated milk
12 pasteurized processed egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla
12 ounces chunky peanut butter
¼ pound chocolate flakes

In ice cream can, mix the first seven ingredients very well with a wire whisk. Put can in bucket and fill ½ full of ice then put ¼ pound salt and more ice until you get to the top. Churn. When ice cream begins to turn hard, add chocolate flakes and turn until ice cream is hard.

According to Jim, ice cream hand churned in a White Mountain ice cream freezer results in smoother ice cream.

Jim Harper and his Aunt Betty Light squabble over the ice cream paddle. "Good cooks run in the family," Jim said. "We're the 'Chosen Few' who find it hard to follow a recipe because we like to add our own ingredients."

Apples, Scrapple Served At Snitz Fest

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — You don't have to live long in Lancaster County to realize the importance of the apple to the diet of the Pennsylvania Germans. "Snitz" pie, apple butter, apple dumplings, and cider are regular and important menu items on Pennsylvania Dutch tables. This was also true in the eighteenth century when Lancaster County represented the western frontier. One of the first things early German Mennonite settlers did in establishing their homesteads was to plant apple orchards, sometimes containing as many as 150 trees.

Snitz Fest at the 1719 Hans Herr House is a celebration of the apple and its influence upon Pennsylvania German diet and culture. It will be held on Saturday, October 5, from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

No celebration of the apple would be complete without tasting the varieties of antique apples that our colonial forefathers enjoyed. One of the features of Snitz Fest will be an Apple Tasting Table. Learn to know the shapes and tastes of apples that you will never find in grocery store, like "Winter Banana", "Chenago Strawberry", "Cox Orange Pippin", or even "Sheepnose". These are all apples that have disappeared from America because they don't meet up to modern marketing standards. As for taste, many claim, the old varieties beat any Red or Yellow Delicious ever grown.

The Hans Herr House orchard will be open for self-guided tours, along with free orchard maps, so that visitors can see the trees that these now rare species of apples come from. This should prove interesting for both new and repeat visitors alike; as a generous donation from Cherry Hill Orchards this past spring added a number of new trees to the orchard.

Another feature has been added to Snitz Fest this October. Apples weren't the only imporant food item harvested in the fall by the inhabitants of early Pennsylvania. Gottlieb Mittleberger, a visitor to "Penn's Woods" from Germany in the 1750's wrote "I don't think there is any county in which more meat is eaten and consumed than in Pennsylvania." The meat he was referring to was pork.

Pigs in colonial America were raised quite differently than they are today. Once a pig was old enough, it was turned loose in the woods to fend for itself, except for an occasional bucket of slop provided by the farmer to keep it in the area. When butchering time came around, the farmer would simply take down his gun and hunt his own pig just like he would any wild animal. Butchering was an activity that always took place in the fall, so that the meat could be easily cooled.

This year at Snitz Fest, traditional Pennsylvania German butchering will be demonstrated. Visitors can watch sausage being ground and stuffed into casings all using antique equipment. They can also discover how certain Pennsylvania delicacies like puddin's, scrapple, and cracklin's are made.

In addition to butchering, orchard tours and apple tasting,

Martin Franke, communications director at the Hans Herr House, Willow Street, sorts out apples that will be used for the Snitz Fest on October 5. Foods available during the Fest include apple snitz, cider, apple butter, apple dumplings, apple pies, and sausages smoked over apple wood in the museum's 18th century smoke house.

Snitz Fest

Snitz Fest will include baking apple bread and cakes in the museum's 18th Century outdoor bake oven. Next to that, sausages will be smoked over apple wood in the smokehouse. Apple butter will made in the traditional way over an open fire in an iron kettle. Traditional Pennsylvania German dishes using combinations of apples, pork, onions, and cabbage will be made over the raised hearth in the Hans Herr House kitchen.

The 1719 Hans Herr House is the oldest building in Lancaster County. It is on the National Historic Register as one of the best examples of medieval German architecture in the United States. It is also the oldest Mennonite meetinghouse in America. Tours of the Hans Herr House, as well as access to the museum's exhibit of 18th and 19th Century household and agricultural implements, are included in admission to Snitz Fest. Admission is $4 for adults, $1 for children 7-12. Snitz Fest will be Saturday, October 5, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Hans Herr House is located 5 miles south of Lancaster off Routes 222 and PA 741 on Hans Herr Drive near the town of Willow Street. For more information, call (717)-464-4438.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

This is the season for fairs. Some are bigger than others but they all take a lot of work and preparation. I've never been an active part of a fair but rather just an observer.

As a child I remember the evening parades at local fairs as being one of the highlights of the fall. My mother got our winter coats out of the mothballs and off we went in our open touring car. Boy, did we give off a smell but the heavy coats felt so good against the nippy air.

This year Allen and I chose to go to the York Fair on a Monday afternoon. We usually watch the horse races but found that there were none on this particular day. The weather was warm and sunny and we walked through all of the exhibition buildings. I don't remember ever seeing so many rabbits, chickens and geese. The animals certainly keep someone busy tending to their needs.

The display of antique dishes and quilts was very colorful. The beautiful crocheted and knitted items must have kept the creator busy for days. And, there were hundreds of drawings and paintings displayed on the walls.

However, my favorite place to visit is the horticultural building. Here they not only have the usual fruits and vegetables but also the unusual. I saw a plant labeled "Sacred Lily of India." It was a large palm-like plant with a mottled stem. What brought it to my attention was the fact that I have a dozen just like it at my home only I was told it was called a "Black China Lily." I was also surprised to see pokeweed berries displayed with edible fruit. I'd always thought they could only be used to make a pink-purple ink. Long ago I saw a letter written in 1870 by my grandfather to my grandmother that used this ink.

After a few hours of walking, we sat down and watched the sheep judging while eating a snack. It was a once a year event.

Video Tells Farmer's Viewpoint

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — A new video series has been developed to tell city folks the farmer's side of the food production story.

"The Food Equation," developed by Monsanto Agricultural Co., the National Corn Growers Association, and the W.J. Morse Foundation of the American Soybean Association, examines our food supply from three different perspectives: food quantity, farming methods and food safety.

The three-part series is narrated by former network anchor Kathleen Sullivan. It features high school students from the city who serve as reporters, asking the nation's leading scientists their views about improving and sustaining the world's ability to produce plentiful, healthful foods for a rapidly growing population.

Along the way, they learn how U.S. farmers, who account for two percent of the population, can feed the rest of the nation and part of the world.

"We hear from some quarters that the modern, high-production farming practices responsible for feeding so many of us should be changed," Sullivan says in the opening of the series. "Ultimately your opinion and mine will be reflected in our government's farm policy."

To help viewers form their own opinions, the student reporters learn how farmers have increased production in the past and examine whether they can continue to do so in the future. The series balances the ecological and food safety concerns about agricultural chemicals with the reality that the Earth has limited land and water and a population that is expected to double in 40 years.

Although the videos are designed for junior and senior high school students, sponsors hope ag chemical dealers will reserve a copy to share with civic groups and others from the non-farming community.

"This is an important message for agriculture, and we're looking for grassroots support in spreading the message," said Robert Harness, vice president of environmental and public affairs for Monsanto. "We hope people in agriculture will urge their school districts to show the series so all can have a balanced perspective on these issues that are vital to our industry."

The series is an extension of the popular series DETAIL, which addresses environmental and safety issues of agriculture. "The Food Equation" tapes, lesson plans, background information, discussion guides, suggested reading lists, classroom handouts and posters are available on a free loan basis through Modern Talking Picture Services by calling by 1-800-243-MTPS. Ag chem dealers and others can order the tapes by calling 1-800-8DETAIL.

Radio Used To Promote Nutrition

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program has utilized another advertising vehicle for Pennsylvania's dairy farmers. The PDPP and dairy products were a part of the recent Big 33 Football Classic on the Radio PA Network and this advertising continues on the statewide network in September.

During the weeks of September 16 and 23, consumers will hear about the goodness of Pennsylvania ice cream. The advertisements focus on ice cream's nutrition and its continued use throughout the fall and winter seasons. The advertisements are the last thrust of the PDPP's ice cream campaign activities.

The Big 33 Football Classic, which touts the accomplishments of high school football athletes, was aired in late July. The PDPP served as a sponsor of the statewide broadcast so followers and others could hear about the exploits of today's young athletes. Many of these athletes are headed for outstanding fall seasons with top college teams.

The Radio PA Network is heard by more than 50% of the state's adult population on both AM and FM stations.

MYCOTOXINS — A REAL AND SERIOUS PROBLEM TO POULTRY PRODUCERS

Andrew G. Yersin
Assistant Professor
Poultry Science

It is well known that crop conditions throughout the U.S. deteriorated rapidly during the months of June and July this past summer due to severe drought conditions.

In addition, recent statements made by the National Broiler Council indicate that current and foreseeable crop conditions do not look promising for achieving a normal harvest, which means higher feed costs and the need to utilize previously stored grain supplies.

This creates potential mycotoxin problems for poultry producers from: 1) utilizing damaged grains from recent crops and 2) utilizing grain reserves which may have been stored improperly and may be moldy.

Mycotoxins, as the word indicates, are toxins produced from fungi or molds. Mycotoxin-producing fungi are common to the environment and may be found in the soil and air around various crops such as peanuts, rice, wheat, and particularly, corn.

If we discuss corn as an example, the fungal spores settle on the corn silk, germinate, and grow down the silk to the kernels, usually without injury to the plant. However, if the plant is subjected to severe stresses, such as water and nitrogen deprivation during a drought or during inadequate application of fertilizer, the mold can cause problems.

As the plant is being stressed, so is the life cycle of the mold which is utilizing the corn as a nutrient source. The mold attempts to ensure survival of its spores by activating specific biochemical pathways termed "secondary metabolism." During this process, various by-products or secondary metabolites are produced, including mycotoxins. Some of these mycotoxins, such as aflatoxin, ochratoxin, and vomitoxin, are known to be harmful to poultry.

After harvest, grains containing spores are affected by moisture, humidity, pH, and temperature conditions during processing and storage which stimulates mycotoxin production as well. Other sources of mycotoxins during and after the manufacture of feed are associated with poor holding conditions. This would include improperly maintained and cleaned feed mixing facilities, pelleting mills, delivery trucks, and, at individual farms, feed storage bins and the feed distribution system (feeder troughs, pans, etc.).

Problems arise due to the consumption of the contaminated feed and can generally fall into one of three categories:

(1) Primary acute mycotoxicosis associated with moderate to high levels of consumption, which can result in liver and kidney damage, gastrointestinal dysfunction, increased bruising and hemorrhages (downgrades or condemns), or mortality.

(2) Primary chronic mycotoxicosis associated with low to moderate levels of consumption, which can result in reduced performance, including reduced body weight, feed conversion, and egg production.

(3) Secondary mycotoxic diseases associated with marginal levels of consumption, which can result in an inadequate immunity, predisposing the birds to other infectious agents.

Since mycotoxin production can occur pre- and post-harvest, poultry producers must continue to recognize conditions which may allow problems to affect their operations. Producers should also utilize a program of regular inspection in those areas which they can indirectly or directly control.

One such area is the feed and pellet mill, if company owned, or by requesting routine feed quality assurance via laboratory analysis. Other areas include conditions at company owned or contract farms.

Service personnel should educate and instruct growers as to the importance of maintaining clean feed bins and feed handling equipment. After cleaning, a bleach solution can also be used to sanitize the equipment. Flock supervisors should attempt to reduce the mean residence time of feed in the bin, since fungal and toxin production are time-dependent.

Attention should be directed to the reduction of interacting factors which translates to "good flock management."

There are many different approaches that can be taken with regard to the mycotoxins. Regardless of the approach, the initial step should be acceptance and recognition that mycotoxins exist and can pose serious problems to poultry producers. The second approach should be the adoption and use of a regular inspection program to identify problem areas when they occur.

Tax Issues Under Scrutiny

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farmland Trust, a non-profit farmland preservation organization, is sponsoring a one-day conference on land preservation at Millersville University on Wednesday, October 9.

Tax issues, conservation easements, and estate planning will be covered in detail. Professionals, interested citizens, and farmers are invited to attend.

"This conference will offer up-to-date, detailed information on tax issues and estate planning for professionals and landowners concerned with preserving land," said Alan R. Musselman, executive director of Lancaster Farmland Trust.

Stephen J. Small will give two seminars titled "Preserving Family Lands" and "Estate Planning." Small is a tax attorney in Boston and well-known conservation tax expert and author. He lectures nationwide on tax incentives for land conservation.

In addition, there will be six workshops on various conservation topics given by local leaders.

To receive a registration brochure and more information call Karen Weiss or June Mengel at the Lancaster Farmland Trust (717) 293-0707. Although registration is open to October 7, space is limited, so please register early.

FARM MANAGEMENT

LEASE AGREEMENTS

Luther B. Smith
Multicounty Farm
Management Agent

Today's economy has lend itself to more and more items (equipment, livestock, land, and buildings) being leased (rented) instead of purchased or a combination of the two.

Many farmers will develop their own lease agreements, especially in the areas of land and buildings and when it involves farmer-to-farmer deals. Some of these agreements are very detailed and others involve a simple handshake, some work very well, and others create more problems then they are worth.

To avoid misunderstandings later, a few basic steps need to be followed.

A simple definition of a lease might be the best place to get started.

A lease is a contract by which one party (landlord or lessors) gives to another party (tenant or lessee) the use and possession of some property for a period of time with certain payments. The payments, usually called rents, are highly negotiable and variable, depending on what is being leased.

This article will focus on what should be contained in a lease agreement.

Regardless of whether it is land, buildings, livestock, or equipment, the following points should be covered in the lease agreement. (Realizing that, the lease will be made specific for the type of item being leased.)

A. Who is the lease between.

• Include full names of all people involved and complete addresses.

B. Time frame for the lease.

• Include starting date and ending date

C. Give a complete and accurate description of the property to be leased.

D. The landlord agrees to:

• Pay what ownership costs (taxes, insurance, capital repairs, debt repayments, etc.).

• Furnish land, buildings, equipment, livestock, etc.

• Furnish other (milking tank and equipment, fence materials, wood from woodlot, silo unloaders, barn cleaner, etc.).

E. The tenant agrees to:

• Pay what rent, how often, and when.

• What concerning maintenance, repairs, construction, land use.

• Pay any other expenses (list specifics and detail).

• Other (keep farm lane passable, spread manure from manure pit prior to a set date, etc.).

F. Both agree to:

• Concerning sub-leases — in case of dispute:

• Sale of portion of farm (how to handle-change rent, payment for standing crops, etc.).

• How to handle standing winter grain at start and stop of lease.

• How to handle stored feed at start and stop of lease.

G. Option in case of death or sale by landlord.

H. Option in case of death or discontinuance of business by tenant.

I. Some other things to consider in a lease:

• Who constructs or remodels buildings.

• What happens if a building burns down or is destroyed by natural causes (wind, lightening, flood, etc.).

The above nine points are based on a Penn State publication by John Brockette, area farm management specialist.

The main concern when creating a lease is to be fair and equitable to both parties and cover all areas in detail. The more you remember to include in the lease the less chance there will be at a later date for disagreement.

If you are interested in more information on leases, contact your local Penn State extension office for publications and sample lease agreements.

Limousin Notches Record Growth

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — The Limousin breed has grown at a record pace for the fifth consecutive year, as measured by annual registrations through the North American Limousin Foundation (NALF).

"Given the fact that until recently, the total cattle industry has been contracting, Limousin's record growth during this period of time has meant an expansion of market share," said Dr. Wayne Vanderwert, NALF executive vice president.

Average annual growth for the breed during the past five years has been 14.9 percent. There were 74,464 Limousin registered through NALF in the 1990 fiscal year, which ended August 31.

"During that same period of time, the rate of new memberships and transfers — cattle going to Limousin breeders and commercial cattlemen — has grown even faster," said Vanderwert.

In fact, memberships and transfers for the breed have also grown at a record pace for the past five years, notching average annual growth rates of 18.6 percent and 15.6 percent, respectively.

Likewise, the beat of the auction barn gavel across the country seems to add real-world confirmation to the growing popularity of the Limousin breed.

Alan Sears, NALF director of special activities, said, "Record numbers of Limousin bulls have sold at auction the past two years, bringing a strong but affordable average of approxi- mately S2,150 from a very receptive buying public."

"Calving ease, feed conversion, genetic leanness, and top yields have combined to make Limousin an opportunity breed for the industry," he said.

During the past fiscal year, Limousin was the fifth largest beef breed in the U.S. When each breed releases its newest registration figures, Vanderwert expects Limousin to become the fourth largest beef breed.

"The Limousin story has been one of tremendous growth and phenomenal acceptance," said Vanderwert, "What's more, the dedication of Limousin breeders today and the genetic merit of the breed point to continued growth. Certainly, the record growth for five consecutive years has commanded attention from across the beef industry."

MARKETING PAYS OFF IN PROFITS

Marketing. In the vast and varied business world of the 1990s, a carefully thought-out marketing plan for the product you produce is essential to higher profits.

Yet in the livestock business, marketing is often neglected. Many hog producers who do an excellent job of raising, feeding, breeding and health care, may feel out of their element when it comes to marketing. But marketing doesn't have to be difficult or confusing.

First, assess your options to determine the best place to sell your animals. Consider the location of marketing outlets in relation to your farm, then estimate travel times, miles and price differentials between one sale and another. Since price discrepancies between markets will always occur, find the markets which will yield the most profit to you.

A producer must learn to expand marketing opportunities to maximize a livestock operation's profit potential. One way is to explore alternative markets. This requires regular analysis of local outlets.

At a conference a few years ago, I met a producer who had developed an ethnic trade for some of his hogs. By catering to groups who wanted a certain kind of hog at specific times of the year, he was able to increase his profit substantially.

Marketing is a skill that can be learned by producers of all ages. A few weeks ago at the state fair, it was apparent to me that some youngsters had dome their marketing homework prior to the Junior Livestock Auction. Even though all livestock project animals sold well, some entries sold for 40 cents per pound more than the average. A few youngsters contacted potential buyers ahead of the sale to promote the purchase of their project animals.

Seeking out potential buyers, contacting them personally, and selling them on the idea of buying a project animal helped these young exhibiters learn how to market livestock.

In my last column, I suggested that buying expensive feeder animals in the hope that the animal will be a champion is a dubious course to winning. But I have to applaud the initiative of the several youngsters who cultivated possible buyers in order to get a better price per pound at the sale.

They also gained practical experience in hog production from feeding and health care to developing marketing know-how and people skills. In addition, they learned to keep records of production costs of their market hog or other livestock-project animal and make a profit.

I encourage all Junior Livestock Auction participants to calculate the actual cost of producing their project animal. Now compare that figure to the actual market value of your project animals the week it sold at auction. The real profit picture may be very different. Maybe it's time to write to the buyer of your auctioned animal to thank them for their support of your educational experience.

Buffalo Enthusiasts Gather At Seminar

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co. — Did you know that there are a lot of people interested in raising bison (buffalo)?

The Pennsylvania Bison Association (PBA) has just presented the second seminar this year at the Ramada Inn at Clark's Summit.It was attended by 42 bison enthusiasts from Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, and Delaware.

There was a large, beautiful shoulder mount of a 10-year-old bison bull on exhibit.

The morning program started with Walter Baumgarner of Wayne County, Penn State extension service, who gave a presentation on "How to Judge Bison" - knowing the good points (and bad) to look for when you buy bison.

From colored photographs on a screen, Baumgarner was able to point out and discuss conformation necessary for a good breeding bison or other characterestics desirable for raising a good meat-producing animal. This topic was most necessary for those present who are interested in buying animals at the bison auction to be held at the Middleburg Auction Barn near Selingsgrove in central Pennsylvania on November 2.

There was also a VCR tape played from the 1990 Bison Gold Trophy Show and Sale, an annual event in Denver, Colo. This showed the excellence available in bison breeding and helped to understand the prices paid for these animals. (The grand champion yearling bull was bought for $8,400.)

The program ended with two judging contest given to help the individuals learn how to pick quality bison.

At lunch, delicious juicy slices of rolled, round roast of bison au jus were served plain or on a roll with a choice of sauces, accompanied by baked beans, coleslaw, and a festive sherbet for dessert. Various door prizes were handed out at this time. There was bison jerky for sale and hand-painted buffalo nickel banks of ceramics, and also black diamond (coal) bison statues.

Bison love to roam. But if you want to raise them, you need good fence to keep them home. So the afternoon part of the program was involved with various kinds of fencing. Ira Beiler of AG Fence Systems, Ephrata, PA gave the pros and cons of fencing. For more information about PBA, call (717) 965-2237.

DEKALB Expands Research With New Lab

STONINGTON, Conn. — DEKALB Plant Genetics has begun construction on a new 41,000-square foot laboratory, office, and greenhouse facilitiy here. It will replace the current complex in Groton, Conn. which is used for DEKALB's biotechnology program.

The $6 million facility is scheduled for completion in Sept. 1992. It will be located in Maritime Park, an industrial complex.

"This represents our continued commitment to biotechnology and its importance to our products," said Dr. Tim Rice, DEKALB's president. "The new facility will allow us to double the size of our current program."

Most of the current staff will relocate from facilities shared with Pfizer, Inc. in Groton. In addition, the company will be hiring more scientists and technicians. The research center will employ about 60 people.

Rice said DEKALB examined several sites across the country before choosing Stonington. Key considerations in making the selection included the area's "attractive living environment and access to good transportation and hotel facilties" — important in attracting staff, he said.

The DEKALB president also praised the community for its cooperation in getting the project approved.

"The community was very enthusiastic about having us locate there," Rice said. "The people have supported our effort wholeheartedly. We're very pleased to be moving to Stonington."

At the facility, DEKALB researchers will use the latest technology to make genetic improvements in corn.

"We will continue to look for ways to improve the efficiency of the way we develop products and also to broaden the possibilities for products," said Dr. Ktty Mackey, director of discovery research. "With the technology now available, we could potentially develop products more quickly. It also allows us to develop products that are impossible using conventional technology."

Last year DEKALB was the first major seed company to use gene transfer technology that allows scientists to incorporate specific traits into a corn plant. Using a "gene gun", scientists actually shot genetic material into a cell.

With this new technology and current breeding methods, researchers hope to develop corn hybrids that will include traits that do not currently exist, noted Rice. Those traits include resistance to herbicides, diseases and insects.

"If all goes according to plan, we should have a commercial product by the end of this decade," he said.

The 445 can be set up for aggressive or conservation tillage with discs or rippled coulters, twisted shovels, or pointed chisels. Discs or coulters are individually mounted for independent action. Models range in size from 7 to 23 feet.

Discs On Chisel Plow Are Spring-Cushioned

COLDWATER, Ohio — White-New Idea Farm Equipment Co. has introduced the White 445 conservation chisel plow.

The new 445 is designed to give the operator complete control over percent of residue left in fields. Users simply change components to adapt to aggressive or conservation tillage practices.

The 445 is available in nine models, ranging from 7 to 23 feet. The 19-, 21-, and 23- foot models fold flat for transport. All models feature rippled coulters or concave discs which are individually mounted and spring cushioned for independent action in uneven and rocky fields.

Chisel shanks with twisted shovels or straight points are available in spring or rigid mounted models. The deep-till shanks work like a subsoiler to break compaction. All components are mounted on a 4"x6" frame, which offers 25 percent more surface and weld area than standard 4"x4" frames, giving it more joint strength. A leveling bar is available for a smoother field and more comfortable ride in spring tillage applications.

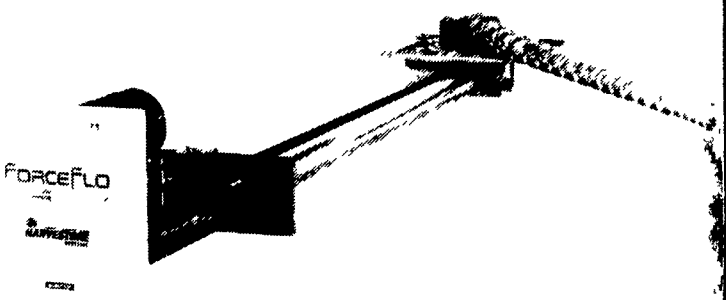
Auger Unloader Handles Moist Grain

DeKALB, Ill. — A new generation unloader for high-moisture grain has been introduced by A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., with headquarters here. Called the ForceFlo™ power sweep auger unloader, the new machine combines full-time sweep and auger actions to keep feed moving even under a full head of moist grain.

The produce announcement was made by Rick Jones, the company's sales manager for agricultural products.

"The ForceFlo unloader is engineered for dependable performance under tough conditions," he said. "It can be expected to deliver fast, consistent bottom unloading of semi-free flowing high-moisture, whole kernel grain."

The unloader's rugged, fully exposed power sweep auger operates whenever the discharge auger is running, creating a forceful dual action to dislodge grain so it has little opportunity to compact. The auger gains additional effectiveness from its tapered design and features variable pitch at the outer end for fast and consistent bottom unloading.



The new ForceFlo power sweep auger grain unloader from A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. uses combination sweep and auger actions to keep semi-free-flowing whole kernel grain moving even in the toughest conditions.

At the heart of the new unloader is an exclusive turntable assembly that permits the sweep auger to rotate a full 360 degrees. Power is applied through a torque amplifier and turntable that delivers up to 2500 ft.-lbs. of torque. Thanks to these advanced features, the ForceFlo unloader has the power it takes to handle high-moisture grain in Harvestore structures up to 25 ft. in diameter and 90 ft. high.

The sweep auger is designed to hug the floor, which reduces excessive floor to auger clearance as is the case with some products on the market. By constantly undermining the feed column all around the structure, the new unloader combines gravity-fed grain with grain removed from the bottom of the structure. This helps keep the moist grain flowing, providing little opportunity for it to compact and harden.

Power is transferred from the unloader's 5 h.p. motor through industrial-type, sealed gear assemblies. The single motor provides all of the unloader's power needs, and is specially designed to deliver high starting torque for efficient start-up. The turntable is a one-piece casting with hardened steel insert drive pins. It is driven by a self-cleaning toothed sprocket.

For utmost versatility, the new unloader can be installed in the same all-purpose trough used for other Harvestore auger and chain-type unloaders, making it a natural choice as a replacement or to upgrade existing systems. Two operating speeds are featured, including a low fixed speed for hard starting and high fixed speed that is ideal for clean-out delivery.

HARVESTING AND FEEDING SUMMER ANNUAL FORAGES

Robert E. Leiby
David L. Dunbar
Lehigh Co. Extension

One of the big concerns this time of year is how to handle sorghum, sudangrass, and their hybrids when they are hit with a frost. Below are some guidelines to follow to reduce both nitrate levels and prussic acid poisoning.

Grain and forage sorghums for silage should be harvested when the grain is at the medium to hard dough stage. Material going into the silo at this stage will carry 70 to 75 percent moisture. The digestibility of sorghum silage, especially from grain sorghums, may be increased considerably by recutting at the time of ensiling.

In a one-cut system, sudangrass and the sorghum-sudangrass hybrids are best harvested between the time heads emerge from the boot and early bloom. If harvested more than once, they may be cut whenever the plants reach an average height of 30 inches or more. However, when cut at this stage, it is important to wilt the crop to remove excessive moisture and to use a preservative at recommended rates.

Occasionally sudangrass is grown with soybeans for silage. When ensiling this mixture, harvest when the sudangrass is at early head to early bloom stages. Millets, when grown for silage in Pennsylvania, should be cut between early head and early bloom.

Sorghum, sudangrass, and their crosses may accumulate nitrates when stressed. Risk of nitrate poisoning can be reduced in the same manner that is recommended for corn silage. Another problem that is restricted to sorghum, sudangrass and their crosses is prussic acid poisoning. It may result when these crops are too immature at harvest or are severely stressed by weather, such as drought and frost.

Risk of prussic acid poisoning may be reduced if sorghum-sudangrass is at least 30 inches high before harvesting and piper sudangrass is at least 18 inches high. Frosted material should not be used unless it is completely killed or dried out and should be cut no earlier than four to seven days after a killing frost.

If material is stunted by frost, delay using it until after a killing frost or ensile the material. Ensiling does not always alleviate the danger of prussic acid poisoning. It generally does, however, after about four weeks of ensiling. This is especially true if harvest is delayed until after a second or killing frost occurs. The same precautions that are used to reduce nitrate poisoning can be followed for prussic acid poisoning.

Holstein Breeder Wins Big With 4-H Guernsey Heifer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — O. Clay Smith, 16, of Lander has spent all of his life on a Frederick County dairy farm where registered Holstein cattle hold sway. But 12 years ago, at age 4, Clay purchased a "Juernsey" heifer — with help from his mother and to the dismay of his father, O. Clayton Smith.

The Guernsey heifer had been donated for an auction to benefit the Frederick County 4-H Camp Center, located just across Mar-Lu ridge from the Smith farm.

Bred by Billy P. Slater of Damascus (Montgomery County), the heifer was consigned by the Spurrier family of Libertytown (Frederick County). Her descendants are included among seven purebred Guernseys now in the Smiths' Holstein herd.

This year, Clay entered one of his original Guernsey cow's daughters, a junior two-year-old named OCS Dairy Daisy's Diadora, in the 4-H and FFA dairy show at the Maryland State Fair in Timonium.

Diadora turned out to be a bovine "Princess Di." She captured the eye of the judges all through the show, winning grand champion honors in Guernsey breed competition and coming back into the show ring to win the judges' nod as supreme champion over all breeds.

She also was selected as best bred and owned animal in the state fair 4-H and FFA dairy show.

Then, for good measure, "Princess Di" paraded royally to help her owner win championship honors in fitting and showing both in breed and inter-breed competition.

Clay Smith helped smooth things over with his father by showing another junior 2-year-old, Ifert OCS Dairy Royalty, to reserve championship honors in the 4-H and FFA Holstein competition.

As part of his 4-H dairy heifer project, Clay learned how to house, feed, and responsibly care for his animals.

Everybody is standing properly except the cow as 0. Clay Smith, 16, of Lander, Frederick County, tries to demonstrate his technique after winning fitting and showing crown in interbreed competition during the 4-H and FFA dairy show at this year's Maryland State Fair. Presenting the C. Ellsworth Iager grand championship plaque is Iager's widow, Mary Elizabeth Iager, of Fulton, Howard County. Standing at left are the dairy show judges Ronald E. Heffner of Lander and Pat Kahler-Beachey of Ladiesburg. At right are two of Maryland's regional dairy princesses, Gretchen Klein, 18, of Millers, Baltimore-Harford counties and Dawn Downey, 15, of Williamsport.

Feed Test Shows Polled Hereford Efficiency

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Polled Herefords continue their promising story in the feedlot. This is backed by the second set of data and final results compiled on steers completing the Kansas Polled Hereford Association's first steer test held at Dulaney Feedyards Inc. in Great Bend, Kan.

"I think we have learned from this test that Polled Hereford cattle will feed competitively in the feedyard and that their feed conversion is among the best in the industry," said Bill Dulaney, feedyard owner and overseer of the steer test.

Together, the two pens of steers that comprised the first test of the Kansas Polled Hereford breeders recorded a 3.69 pound average daily gain for their 130 days on full feed.

Individually for this time frame, Pen 620 recorded an ADG of 3.74 pounds, while Pen 619 posted an ADG of 3.64 pounds.

Overall performance in the feedlot was similar between these steers, which were divided into two groups according to weight before starting the feed trial.

The 39 steers in Pen 619 had a cost of gain of 41 cents per pound with a feed conversion of 6.10 pounds of feed per pound of gain. Pen 620's 34 head also recorded a 41 cent Cost of gain and had a 6.02 pound conversion ratio.

Slaughtered in late July, the steers in Pen 619 had an average pay weight of 1,233 pounds. They yielded 63 percent and had an average carcass weight of 781 pounds with a 13.1 square inch ribeye area. Pen 620, slaughtered in early June, recorded similar carcass numbers while posting an average pay weight of 1,238 pounds.

Community Supports Montgomery Co. 4-H Market Animal Sale

CREAMERS (Montgomery Co.) — The 1991 4-H Fair had a new event this year which received excellent support from local business and community leaders along with many other individuals. With John Black donating auction services 9 steers 39 lambs and 30 rabbits were auctioned off to the highest bidder. The 1,490 pound Grand Champion Steer exhibited by Ben Martin of Harleysville was purchased by Moyer and Son located in Souderton for a price of $1,609.20. Producers Should Learn How To Cold-Store Crops

ITHACA, (N.Y.) — Operators of refrigerated and controlled atmosphere storage facilities and their consultants have many questions about how to manage these systems for maximum results. Others have questions about constructing or updating their existing facilities to increase the marketable life of fresh fruits and vegetables.

The revised edition of "Refrigeration and Controlled Atmosphere Storage for Horticultural Crops" (NRAES-22) by James A. Bartsch and G. David Blanpied, researchers at Cornell University, provides operating guidelines and design tables to answer many of the questions people have.

"The elementary principles of refrigerated storage have changed very little," Bartsch said. "What is changing are management strategies, and the use of modern construction materials and cooling equipment."

Storage systems are important because they extend the acceptable eating quality of seasonal, perishable horticultural products. In a proper storage environment, the flavor, color, and texture needed for a product's marketability can be extended. NRAES-22 contains information on the current best use of materials and equipment for farmers, contractors, educators, and anyone else working in the storage industry

Storage industrialists should know that for maximum profitability, a refrigerated storage system must maintian an appropriate temperature and level of relative humidity for the crop being produced. In this bulletin, the desirable features of cooling equipment, and quantity and type of insulation needed for various applications are outlined. Load calculations and operating procedures for several refrigeration systems are also included.

The bulletin also features design and management information on controlled atmosphere (CA) storage systems. In CA storage, oxygen levels are reduced and carbon dioxide levels are elevated in an airtight, refrigerated storage environment to further suppress mertabolic activity in stored products. CA equipment, storeroom construction, design and pressure test procedures, and system operation are discussed. A special section on CA safety precautions is also included.

The revised edition of "Refrigeration and Controllede Atmosphere Storage for Horticultural Crops" (NRAES-22), a guide for the operation, construction, and maintenance of refrigeration and controlled atmosphere storage systems, is available for $5.75 and quantity discounts are available. Postage and handling are included for U.S. orders only; orders from outside the U.S. must be prepaid in U.S. funds.

Make check payable to NRAES and order from the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service (NRAES), 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Cooperative Extension, Ithaca, NY 14853, (607) 255-7654.

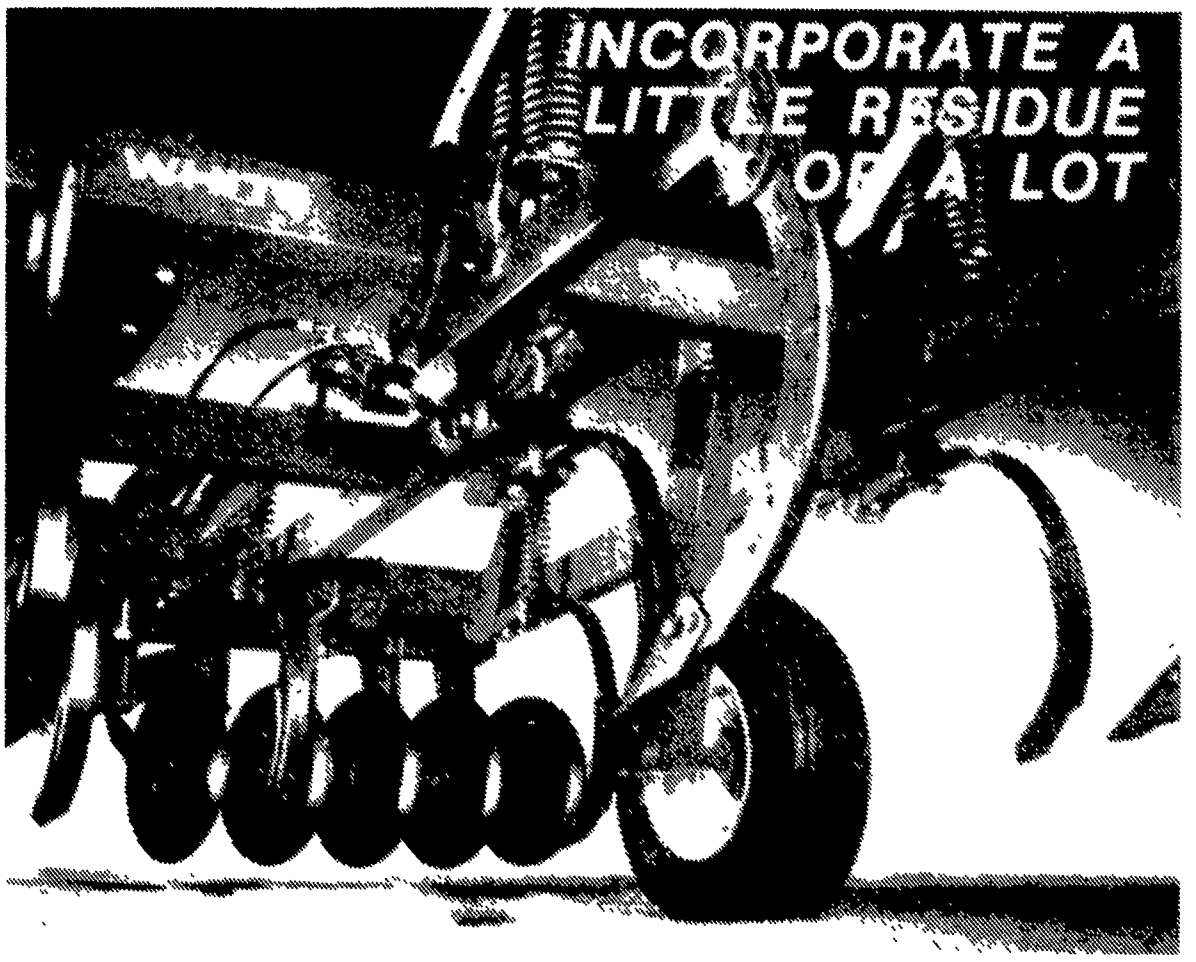
The new White 445 Conservation Disc Chisel



Protect Your Soil From Erosion

The new White 445 Conservation Disc Chisel can help you conserve your most valuable asset -- soil

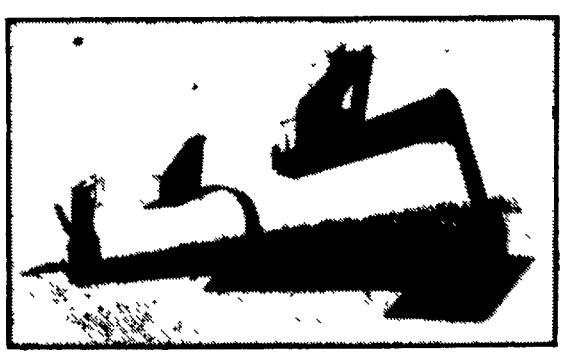
The new White 445 can help you properly incorporate crop residue to match your soil type and percent of slope. With a choice of maximum incorporation cutting discs or minimum incorporation straight coulters, you can incorporate residue to the level you desire. Choose either twisted or straight chisel points to shatter soil and mix residue to meet your needs. And the optional deep tillage shanks to break up hardpan and increase moisture absorption.

Performance

Our front cutter assembly is hydraulically actuated to control depth of the disc. Also, discs are individually mounted, not ganged, so they cover all the ground. When necessary, add our new leveling bar to help level your fields.

Tri-level Tillage

The 445 works the soil at three levels. Concave discs work down to 7 inches while the chisel shanks shatter soil down to 12 inches. With the optional deep-till shanks you can penetrate down to 18 inches.



With the new White 455, tri-level tillage can be accomplished in only one pass.

Tobacco Industry Has Trade Surplus

PRINCETON, N.J. — With United States cigarette exports to the Soviet Union up more than 7,200 percent, the United States tobacco industry finished the first half of 1991 with a trade surplus of $2.7 billion. This is an increase of almost $247.5 million, or more than 9.9 percent when compared with 1990, according to the Tobacco Merchants Association (TMA).

The U.S. tobacco industry's six-month positive trade balance contribution compares to the nation's overall merchandise trade deficit for the January to June period of nearly $24.71 billion.

"In spite of the stronger U.S. dollar, in the first half of 1991, U.S. cigarette manufacturers exported 88 billion cigarettes, valued at over $2.36 billion, up $314.4 million or 15.3 percent over the first six months of 1990," said Farrell Delman, president of TMA.

Through the first six months of 1991, leading countries of destination for U.S. cigarettes included Japan, Belgium, Hong Kong, United Arab Emirates, Saudi Arabia, Turkey, the U.S.S.R., and Singapore.

"These eight destinations, none of which are classified as developing or less-developed countries, accounted for 85.5 percent of all cigarette shipments for this period," commented Delman.

At $290.5 million, the positive trade contribution from the leaf tobacco sector was, however, down 19.9 percent when compared with the first half of 1990, "as increasing amounts of imported oriental leaf were needed to fuel American-blend cigarette exports and the availability of U.S. leaf supplies for export were down given the excess domestic demand needed for cigarette exports," Delman said.

While leaf tobacco imports were up 41.4 percent to nearly $364.8 million, leaf tobacco exports were up only 5.5 percent to $810.6 million when compared to 1990.

"Given the increasing demand for high quality U.S. manufactured American-blend cigarettes, as seen by the rapidly growing export figures, and the tight worldwide supply conditions, especially for quality flue-cured and burley tobacco," Delman said, "the U.S. could be producing more and more of the world's tobacco supply.

"Even if the U.S. tobacco farmer this year produced all of the supply permitted under the current quota formulation, U.S. supplies would still likely be short of domestic and foreign demand, requiring U.S. manufacturers to import more than would otherwise he necessary," he said.

Delman concluded that "it was somewhat ironic that in contrast to the tobacco farmers in the European Community, who are subsidized to produce excess supplies of unwanted types of tobacco, the self-funding, market-driven, no-subsidy U.S. tobacco system can't seem to produce enough of the high quality U.S. tobacco that is in excess demand the world over."

Antique Tractors Grace Du Pont Calendar

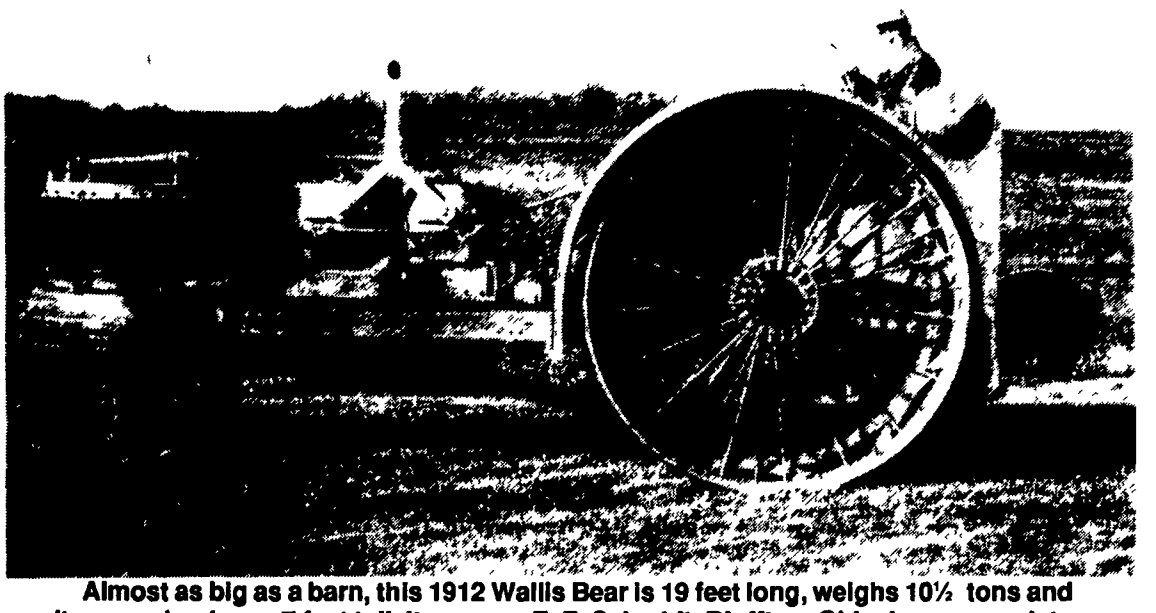
WILMINGTON, Del. — Beautifully restored, mint-condition antique farm tractors from 11 different states are featured in vibrant 14 inch x 10 inch color photographs in the 1992 Classic Tractors Calendar, produced by Du Pont Agricultural Products.

There are two tractors each from Illinois, Iowa and Ohio, and one from Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, and Tennessee. There is also a tractor "pinup" from Ontario, Canada.

Oldest antique tractor on the calendar is a 1912 Wallis Bear, a gigantic machine weighing 21,000 pounds. "Newest" tractors are a 1941 Farmall MD, and a 1941 McCormick-Deering 04, a specialized tractor used for orchard work.

The 14 handsome tractors were chosen from hundreds submitted to Du Pont. To qualify, tractors must be at least 50 years old and be fully restored.

Also, a videotape and poster are available, each featuring all 14 tractors and their owners. For details, call toll-free (800) 527-2601.



Almost as big as a barn, this 1912 Wallis Bear is 19 feet long, weighs 10½ tons and its rear wheels are 7 feet tall. Its owner, E. F. Schmidt, Bluffton, Ohio, has a complete collection of old Wallis tractors, and the "Bear" is the only one in existence. This rare tractor and 13 others are featured in brilliant color on the 1992 Classic Tractors Calendar, produced by Du Pont Agricultural Products.

Lancaster Firm Named Semex USA Distributor

LANCASTER, (Lancaster Co.) — Semex Canda, the international exporting agent for the major Canadian studs, has established distributorships in the United States, and one Lancaster-based company has assumed the marketing responsibilities for the eastern states.

Semex USA East, Inc., formerly Special Sires, Inc., will be the sole authorized distributor for Semex Canada in the eastern U.S.

Terry Swartz, president of Semex USA East, Inc., explains that the company's goal remains the same, although specialized.

"Our goal has always been to provide dairymen with the genetics from the best bulls of the breed," said Swartz, "and that continues to be our thrust. Now we will be offering the best of Canada and the six major AI organizations there."

Canadian genetics have established their credentials with many U.S. dairymen, a fact not overlooked by Swartz in making the decision to go strictly Canadian.

"The percentage of Canadian sales at Special Sires was growing every year," said Swartz," and when the opportunity to take over the complete marketing for the East became available, we decided to take advantage of it. We saw it as a growth market.

For dairymen, the advantages of a single-source Canadian distributorship are plain. "Previously, Canadian semen was sold by several organizations with a variety of marketing strategies, but no one concentrated on Canadian bulls," said Swartz. "Now American dairymen will benefit from a unified, more organized approach to marketing the Canadian product."

Another benefit, according to Swartz, will be an improved flow of information regarding Canadian sires, particularly as it relates to the Canadian proving system. According to a recent survey, very few U.S. dairymen fully understand the Canadian system, and education will be the number one priority of his sales staff.

Semex Canada requires their representatives to be thoroughly educated about the Canadian system and the Canadian bulls," said Swartz. "All of the salespeople at Semex East underwent a week of training in Canada, and an ongoing schedule of education is in progress. We are all excited about the prospect of showcasing the Canadian system. The reliability of the Canadian proofs is amazing.

York 4-H Dairy Champion Chosen

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Dar-Dale Jax Casey was chosen supreme champion as the highlight of the York's Fair's 4-H dairy show.

It was the first supreme title for Glenville youth exhibitor Danny Cole, who moments before claimed the senior and grand champion Holstein breed honors with his senior two-year-old. The win was also the first breed championship for the 14-year-old Cole, who has been a 4-H dairy exhibitor for six years.

Casey is scored GP-82 and projected to a first lactation of 21,000 milk. She is sired by Ecraso Astroglen Jax and was bred by Cole's cousin Dana Doll, Glen Rock.

Reserve Holstein champion honors went to Dixie Doll, Glen Rock, with her homebred three-year-old Dar-Dale Buckaneer Bambi. Junior champion was the winning junior calf, Penn-Gate V. Dan Hope, exhibited by Amy Trimmer, East Berlin. Reserve junior champion rosette went to Daphne Doll, Glen Rock, at the halter of her winning senior calf Count Dar-Dale Nickle.

Ayrshire honors were split by brothers Jason and Jesse Stambaugh, Spring Grove. Jason won senior and grand ribbons with his dry cow, Ray Knoll Julius Jamica and reserve honors with P R Ken Worth Pudge Puppy, a junior two-year-old. Junior title also went to Jason, with the senior calf Triple J Gemini Jewel, over Jesse's reserve winner, the intermediate calf Triple J Gemini Andy.

Heather Crowl, Airville, claimed Brown Swiss champion honors with the three-year-old homebred Joyel Anchorman Cass. Reserve grand and junior champion was Foust Hill Jeff Panda, an intermediate calf exhibited by Joshua Hushon, Delta. Kelly Jo Myers won the reserve junior champion title with her summer yearling, Welsh Ponderosa Pran Jodi.

Milking Shorthorn 4-H champion was the junior calf entry of Heather Crowl.

Both senior and junior champion Guernsey honors went home with Fawn Grove 4-H'er Kelly Morris. Kelly's aged cow, Beas Bonus Tinkerbell, added another year to her string of youth breed class titles, over the reserve champion, the junior two-year-old exhibited by Annie Rauhauser, Dover. In the reserve junior champion slot was Michelle Jenkins, Fawn Grove, with the junior yearling Cedar Fringed Violet.

Annie Rauhauser topped the Jersey competition, taking senior and grand champion rosettes with her senior two-year-old Lilac-Springs John Joleen. Junior champion and reserve grand was the summer yearling exhibited by William Jenkins, Fawn Grove.

Milking shorthorn competition had only one exhibitor, with Heather Crowl taking junior and grand honors with her junior calf, Joyel Duke Tabby.

In the showmanship division, junior age group, Amy Trimmer placed first, over Daphne Doll, second, and Steve Gemmill, third. Supreme Swine Champion Named At York

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

York (York Co.) — Duroc entries snagged two of the four supreme swine awards during open class competition at the York Fair.

Jim Parlett and son Gus, of Airville, showed their homebred red gilt to Duroc and supreme champion female honors. Youth exhibitor Jason Rankin, Abbottstown, took Duroc and supreme barrow with his 250-pound purebred, purchased this spring at the sale of Hanover breeder Roger Bankert.

Supreme boar title went to the Yorkshire breed winner, exhibited by Donna Strawbridge, Windsor. Russell and Arlie Cornbower, New Freedom, claimed the supreme pair honors with their winning Berkshire entry.

CHESTER WHITES

The Parlett entries dominated the Chester White breed competition, with the Airville, capturing both the boar and gilt champion rosettes. Roger Bankert finished in the reserve spot in both the boar and gilt runoffs.

Matt Trostle, Red Lion, claimed champion barrow win, over Daniel Hartman, Markstown, with the reserve barrow. Pairs honors were split by Bobbi Myers, Thomasville, exhibiting the champion two, over reserve winner Jim Parlett.

DUROCS

Brodbecks swine breeder Steve Wherely topped the boar classes with his champion, over the reserve entry of Jim Parlett. Jason Rankin, Abbottstown, topped the barrow class, over Parlett in reserve. The Parlett entries took champion honors in both the gilt and pairs classes, over Roger Bankert's reserve wins.

YORKSHIRES

HAMPSHIRES

Hampshire honors were also dominated by Donna Strawbridge, taking the champion boar, champion and reserve gilt, and champion pair titles. Reserve champion boar was exhibited by Lee Bicklsler, York Springs. Strawbridge claimed the reserve barrow award.

BERKSHIRES

Titles in the Berkshire breed were shared by exhibitors Todd Bennecoff, Kutztown and Russell and Arlie Cornbower, New Freedom. Bennecoff's wins included champion boar and gilt, while the Cornbowers snagged champion and reserve barrow, champion pair, and reserve champion boar and gilt.

POLAND CHINAS

Kutztown breeder Cheryl Bennecoff got the nod for champion boar and gilt honors in the Poland China runoffs, over the reserve winners exhibited by Kenneth Bauer, Woodbine, Maryland. Both the barrow and pairs championship also went to Bauer.

SPOTTED HOGS

MARKET HOGS - OPEN AND 4-H

In the 4-H competition, exhibiting different entries, the pair switched titles. Trostle garnered the 4-H champion market hog honors, over Rankin's reserve winner.

John C. Strawbridge, 7, poses with the supreme and Yorkshire champion boar, exhibited by his mother, Donna.

Open class supreme gilt at the York Fair was the homebred Duroc winner exhibited by Gus Parlett.

This couple got a bad deal. They figured they could get away by going with the cheapest builder. They just couldn't contain their emotions when I told them that my buildings still look like new even after being up a long time. But what really made them cry was when they heard that I even paid less than they did in the long run. What about you? If you want a building that will out last the others, don't call a "cheapo" like they did. Call the professionals at BRECKNOCK BUILDERS. (They won't laugh at you, they will help you, and design a building for your needs.)

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

If The Forage You Chop Is Drought-Stressed.... Test It For Nitrates

Drought-stricken fields of corn, sorghum and legumes are most apt to contain harmful levels of nitrate, particularly those that have been heavily fertilized with manure or nitrogen fertilizer.

Excessive levels of nitrates can cause lower production, reproduction problems or even death.

We are a full service testing laboratory. Contact us at our toll-free number 1-800-659-7542 for price list and sample mailers.

300 ACRE JUNIATA COUNTY FARM/ORCHARD, 45 MI. N/W OF HARRISBURG 10 MI N/W OF LIVERPOOL & RT. 11/15
130 clear of which 110 are now in orchard, various fruit trees of various ages, mostly apples and peaches. 2 dwellings, 3rd dwelling negotiable, cold storage, packing shed, green house, large machine shed, field machine shed, & work shop. Lot of Twp road frontage, secluded, lot of level land. This farm has a lot of options. It could continue solely as an orchard with added use as a beef, horse, swine or poultry farm or could be operated entirely as any one of the above. There are several large wooded areas that are secluded, level and well drained which would make excellent sites for poultry or swine buildings. Should you wish to operate other than an orchard, the fruit could be a source of income for several years and then fazed out. There are also several odd wooded areas that have public road frontage which could be subdivided for weekend retreats or permanent home sites, therefore recouping a portion of your initial investment. This farm must be inspected to realize the potential of the many uses. No showings prior to financial qualification.

- AminoTek Hi Peak

In Jan. 1990, my cows peaked at 65 lbs. & a 3.9 butterfat. The cows held in the 60's for 5-6 months & I was pretty pleased. In Feb. 1991, I again reached 65 lbs. with a 3.9 butterfat but after Sensenig's Feed Mill dairy meetings & learning about AminoTek I decided to try it. The cost was virtually the same as my Protek dairy feed & with some of the results I was hearing about I was hoping for the same. Well, I was surprised!!! After 2 weeks on AminoTek dairy & AminoTek Hi Peak, my cows jumped to 71 lbs./cow/day. By the third week, they reached 73 lbs./cow & my butterfat was 3.7%. The cows held over 70 lbs. for the next 3 months. Our June test was still 68½ lbs.

The cows really clean up the dairy feed & topdress. It is really hard to believe how fresh cows take off!!!

With the low milk price, I am glad AminoTek came out when it did... I needed the milk increase!

I am 32 years old, and have been milking cows on my own for 8 yrs. It has always been my goal to get my name in the local dairy magazines. It takes 600 lbs. of protein to get your name published. I switched to Master Mix AminoTek & although I was approaching 200 DIM (Days in Milk), my fresh cows have responded 3 to 4 lbs. & since April I have been over 600 lbs. of protein. My name appeared in Lancaster Farming for the first time ever in April. Our butterfat has gone up 2-3 points also. We are very happy since we switched to AminoTek & we hope to hit 20,000 lbs. this fall when I have more fresh cows.

A Sincere THANK YOU To The Above Dairymen For Their Time And Effort.

Worker's Compensation May 'Self-Destruct,' Says PFA

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — "Workers comp is self-destructing across the country," Vicki Gittlen, Pennsylvania Farmers Association (PFA) insurance director for Region 1, explained to the directors of the Chester/Delaware Farmers Association at their monthly meeting held here recently.

In other business, the board considered activities for Farm/City Day, membership planning, update on policy development, and recognized outstanding insurance service by Melba King, county insurance agent.

"There is abuse in the system. It is very difficult to find carriers. Unless the system is improved, the State Workmans Insurance Fund will be the only carrier of workers comp insurance," Gittlen said. "Any coverage that has health care clauses in it will soon disappear. This applies to any coverage such as automobile and liability coverage. PFA is represented on a statewide board trying to correct the abuses and prevent a collapse of the system."

Gittlen credited Melba King, Lincoln University, as being an outstanding insurance agent.

"Melba is one of seven agents acoss the state who have been qualified for a trip to the American Farm Bureau Federation Convention, held in Kansas City, Missouri in January of 1992," Gittlen said. King has been awarded the trip for five years in a row for her outstanding service to Chester County farmers.

Susan McCardie, West Chester, is the new membership processor for the Chester/Delaware Farmers Association. She will be recording new members as well as renewals.

Policies developed at community meetings will be voted on at the fall dinner meeting of the Chester/Delaware Farmers Association, September 26, at the Octorara Presbyterian Church, Parkesburg, Richard Breckbill, president, Oxford Barclay Hoopes, vice-president, Landenberg, is chairman of the policy development committee. He will carry all policies adopted at this meeting to the State PFA Policy Committee meeting on October 31 in preparation for PFA's annual meeting November 18-20 in Hershey.

David Herr, Parkesburg, chairman for the dinner, said that the speaker would be Keith Eckel, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association. Members are urged to make reservations soon for the event.

"The government relations committee is locating county farms where legislators will be invitied to meet and visit with farmers association members," said Bob Lange, chairman, Malvern. This is part of the committee's program for members and legislators to examine farming problems and exchange ideas.

Michael Maule, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Maule, Avondale, has won a $100 savings bond at the state level for his safety poster submission, said Linda Hicks, chairman of the women's committee, West Chester. His poster will be included in the 1992, PFA calendar. He is also eligible for a grand prize of another savings bond.

Farm/City Day will be held Saturday, October 26. Tentative plans include a visit to a nursery, dairy farm, sheep and game-bird farm, and vegetable farm. The farms will be grouped in eastern Chester and western Delaware counties. Further information will be available October 1, Hicks said.

Ed Cannon, Avondale, regional liaison with DER, said that a meeting of county coordinators in the region was being set up for October. He expects that many of the farming complaints now being sent to DER can be resolved at the county level.

Roy Romberger, regional organization director, PFA, Elverson, asked directors to consider making available a life membership in PFA and the American Farm Bureau. This would be limited to 1,000 members statewide. It would be used to fund an endowment. The interest would provide funding for the local and state associations.

Romberger asked the board to contribute to a traveling exhibit that could be used at fairs and meetings.

Judging Teams Go On To National Competition

EVA MARTIN
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — Judging Contests have been an essential part of the 4-H dairy and livestock programs in Maryland. Starting at the county level, practices are held for anyone interested. They give placings and oral reasons to their adult coaches. From this group, a team of four is chosen to represent the county at the state contest held each year at the Maryland State Fair. They compete as county teams and on an individual basis, hoping to be chosen to go to National competition.

The 4-H'ers work hard from 8:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m. judging the classes of animals. During the contest, they are not permitted to communicate with anyone but the superintendent. Concentrating on each class, they put to use the knowledge their coaches have taught them during the several months of practice in their home counties.

Then several hours of waiting as final results are computed. Emotions run high as the announcer says, "We're ready". There is clapping, cheers, cow bells ringing, cameras flashing, parents beaming with pride as each individual or team is called to the platform to receive their award for a job well done.

The ten individuals scoring highest in the Senior Divisions remain at the fair for two days of coaching and practice. From these ten, four individuals are chosen according to their five highest scores to represent Maryland at the National Contests.

Feeser Shows Top Maryland Hogs

EVA MARTIN
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, MD. — Monica Feeser received Grand Champion and Reserve Champion 4-H Market Hog Trophies with her entries to the Maryland State Fair. They were her 245 lb. and 225 lbs. animals respectively. She also took with her the award for Heavyweight Champion while Matt Soper placed Heavyweight Reserve with his 4-H market hog weighing 240 lbs.

Melissa Patrick's 220 lb. market hog was named lightweight Champion and Reserve Lightweight went to Michael Weber's 210 lb. entry.

Judge of the 4-H Division was Dan Frobforobose, who has judged nationally and throughout North America. He is an extension agent serving nine counties in Northwest Ohio. He also raises hogs and ran a swine test station there.

In the open class division, a beautiful duroc exhibited by J. Howard Meredith Sr. was chosen Supreme Champion Female over all breeds with his April gilt.

The Merediths of Wyemills, Maryland also had the Supreme Champion Pair of Barrows with a pair of heavyweight Durocs.

Frank Feeser was awarded Supreme Champion Barrow with his Hampshire entry.

Judge Jerry McLemore, who is in partnership with his brother in a large hog operation in Minnekah, Oklahoma, said the champions were the kind of breeding stock he would like to take back to his operation. He commended the breeders of Maryland for their accomplishments and success in breeding the quality of animals exhibited.

Special Awards Given At Maryland State Show

Eva Martin
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, MD. — Each year during the Holstein show at the Maryland State Fair, special awards are presented to recognize outstanding achievements and accomplishments of Holstein breeders.

The Breed Improvement Committee of the Maryland Holstein Association, chaired by Jeff Myers, made selections for 1990: Outstanding Senior Breeder, Donald Keller; Outstanding Junior Breeder, Mike and Kathy Patrick; Distinguished Service Award, Lester Dudrow.

Maryland's 1991 Outstanding Junior Holstein Breeders are Kathy and Mike Patrick, who are presented with the honor by Buddy Hill, award donor.

Senior Holstein Breeder Award

Donald Keller and family began in the registered Holstein business in 1941 with the purchase of a registered calf from the Rolling Knoll herd of McKendree Walker & Sons. Some time later, two more registered animals were purchased and many members of the herd today trace back to these three foundation animals.

In 1950, the farm and herd operation at home was turned over to Donald and his brother. At that time, the herd was part grade and part registered. Nine years later, Donald and his new wife, Sylvia, started farming on their own. Since that time, their "Wind Drift" prefix has become familiar to Holstein breeders across Maryland and throughout the country. One reason for this name recognition has been Wind Drift Countess Nora, EX-96. She was twice chosen All-American and twice Supreme champion at the Central National Holstein Show, and was bred and raised by the Kellers before going on to the national spotlight.

Other excellent cows and bulls that carry the Wind Drift prefix include some from the Nora Family, with bulls being sold into AI. Cattle have been exported to foreign countries and sold in several states, both privately and through consignment sales. All this from a herd that has maintained a relatively constant herd size of between 55 and 60 milking animals.

The herd has been on DHIA test for 35 years with Danald serving as State Director for DHIA for 4 years. He has been a member of the National Holstein Association for 43 years and served as President, Vice-President and Director at the county level as well as serving on several committees. Donald and Sylvia have also been very active in the Dairy Princess program at both the county and state level for the past 9 years, helping the princesses promote dairy products.

Today the herd is bred 100% AI and is 100% registered. Cattle are still being shown at the county, district and state level. Donald and Sylvia are assisted in the operation and management of the farm by their two children, Wes and Cindy. The latest classification shows a BAA of 102.2%

Junior Holstein Breeder Award

Mike and Kathy Patrick of Woodbine were selected as Maryland's 1991 Outstanding Junior Holstein Breeders.

Mike's roots in the dairy industry began with registered Ayrshires, which he showed as a 4-H project. When Mike and Kathy were married in 1977, they formed a second family farm, Maple Dell II, with 44 Holsteins of which only 1 was registered, and carried a rolling herd average of 13,680 lbs. of milk. By 1986, there were 76 Holsteins sporting better than a 20,000 lb. herd average.

In 1986, the family farms were combined with Mike working with his father, David, his uncle Jimmy and brother Denny. Today, over 900 acres are farmed and there are 220 registered Holsteins averaging 21,660 lbs. milk, 3.7% 809 lbs. fat and 3.3, 718 lbs. protein. The herd's most recent classification shows a strong BAA of 103.4. In 1990 Maple Dell Farm received the award for high producing Senior Two Year Old in the state with ROM Mandingo Deena completing 31,638 lbs of energy corrected milk.

Both Mike and Kathy worked on the recent State Holstein Convention committee, hosted by Howard County. In addition, Mike has served on the Howard County Holstein Association Board of Directors, and is now serving as their president. Kathy serves as a leader of the Howard County 4-H Dairy Club and the family is active in St. Michael Catholic Church.

Distinguished Service Award

The Distinguished Service Award was bestowed upon a man with a long, full career in the dairy industry.

Lester Dedrow was born and raised on a Frederick County dairy farm. He bred a high quality herd of registered Holsteins with the Gaymont prefix, including an All-American nomination. A long time supporter of the Frederick County Holstein Sale, Lester served as a leadsman for many years. His consignments topped several sales of the county club for which he served as president.

Leadership has been a major part of Mr. Dudrow's life. He has been a director of the MD Artificial Breeding Cooperative and the MD Holstein Association. Milk cooperativers, Farm Bureau and Farm Credit have all benefited from his time served on their boards. In 1983, Lester was inducted into the Maryland Dairy Shrine.

Lester loves to work with youth. His unselfishness and dedication in this area have made him close to a living legend in Frederick County. He serves as superintendent of the 4-H Dairy Cattle Department at the Frederick County Fair, works closely with the 4-H Dairy Bowl teams, and serves on the Frederick County 4-H Camp Center Board. Coaching the Frederick County 4-H Dairy Judging teams for 31 years has allowed him to touch the lives of many. His judging knowledge and teaching skills have earned him much respect as many of his students of dairy judging have gone to National Competition. Dudrow helped coach one Maryland team to a National title.

Maryland's 1991 Outstanding Senior Holstein Breeders award is presented by donor Russell Wachter to Wes Keller, Sylvia Keller, Donald Keller, and Cindy Keller.

Mites On Pet Birds Need Attention

Herbert C. Jordan
Associate Professor
Poultry Science
Penn State

Mites on the skin and feathers of a cockatiel or other pet bird can be aesthetically ugly and emotionally bothersome.

Locating a cage inside a window where wild birds are fed outside can bring ectoparasites such as mites to pet birds inside if there is a way (small opening) to enter the house.

Mites can cause the pet bird to constantly preen, scratch, and peck at itself. Mites can crawl on human skin causing it to itch. Mites on a pet bird can cause the pet bird to be pale, have rough or broken feathers, molt an excess number of feathers prematurely, and fail to behave normally.

A further series of difficult questions is:

• How do so many mites reproduce? They do so asexually. There is no adult male among northern fowl mites and he female reproduces alone in large numbers.

• Do mites spread disease among host birds? No, not often — the mite is rarely implicated in disease spread. Physically, any insect can carry disease organisms; however, mites are rarely suspected.

• How can mite infestations be prevented? Keep all strange birds and visitors out of the bird's area or pen. Keep host birds healthy, for the mite normally reproduces rapidly on cull or sick birds. Many healthy birds seem to have mite-resistant chemistry or physics or microbiology in their system which we do not understand.

• How can we rid a bird of mites that are present? To rid mites from a bird, bathe the bird in sanitizer and water, then rinse it with plain water. One eighth to one quarter (⅛ to ¼) cup of Chlorox™ in 6 gallons of water used as a bath or dip works well.

Remove this chlorine mixture from skin 2 to 3 minutes after the treatment by a bath with clear water. (Be careful with this mixture. It can irritate the skin.)

Prevent mites or lice by keeping pet birds away from wild birds or bird feeders.

Commercial pesticide dust can be purchased from poultry or pet supply stores to dust directly on birds'w skin. Read and follow label directions on all pesticide containers.

STRAIGHT TALK about milking systems service

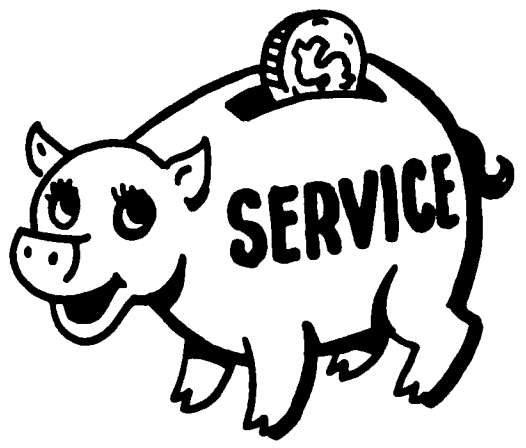
Why should your milking system be serviced



1. Veterinarians, inspectors, and extension service personnel agree that a properly functioning and well- maintained milking system is the first step in developing a mastitis control program that can return up to five dollars for every one you invest.

2. It will reduce down time and emergency service charges.

3. Worn or malfunctioning equipment can lengthen milking times and lower productivity.

4. Proper service and maintenance procedures can help extend the operational life of your equipment and help you budget operating costs.

Holstein Named York Fair Dairy Supreme

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.)— Two days of dairy judging in the York Fair culminated in the naming of the show's supreme champion, Unicorn Kayel Alice, exhibited by Jemaro Holsteins, New Oxford.

Just prior to the parade of breed champions for the supreme title, Alice got the champion nod to top the Holstein classes. A four year old, she is scored VG-88 for owners Jeff and Mary Kay Roche and projected to finish her current lactation at 24,000. Two weeks prior, the Lonsfarm Kay Elevator-ET daughter won her class and was named reserve champion at the South Mountain Fair. The Roche's milk 80 head at the New Oxford Jemaro Holsteins farm.

Reserve supreme champion title went to the Jersey champion, Top-O-Hill Admiral Valentine, bred and exhibited by veteran showman Mildred Seeds.

Valentine, a three year old sired by Bridon Master Admiral-ET, is scored VG-86, and projected to 12,000 milk in her second lactation. She also won the fair's reserve supreme title last year, has taken breed champion honors this season at Goshen and Cecil County fairs and was reserve supreme at Cecil County.

Reserve senior and grand champion of the Holstein show went to Keith Shaffer, exhibiting Old Ke-Hills Misty Cinnamon-Red. The Excellent red aged cow topped her class and took the championship in July at the York Holstein show. Junior champion was the 4-H intermediate calf entry of Steve Gemmill, Woodbine Starman Myrtle. Amy Trimmer's junior calf, Penn Gate V Dan Hope, was named reserve junior champion.

Jersey reserve senior and grand was the second placing three year old exhibited by Mildred Seeds, Top-O-Hill Admiral Tina. Tricia Curtis took the junior champion honors with Patrick Gemni Christina, her winning intermediate calf. Reserve junior was the senior yearling entry of Mildred Seeds, Top-O-Hill Silver B Thanks.

Rutter Bros. Mels Beary claimed her second consecutive Guernsey senior and grand champion title in the fair's breed show. The four year old is scored EX-90 and is projected to finish her second lactation with 16,000 milk. Her senior two-year-old herdmate, Rutter Bros. Prides Minnie, got the judge's nod for reserve spot. Kelly Morris took junior champion honors with her 4-H intermediate yearling, Moracre Fayette Junglebell, over the reserve intermediate calf, Rutter Bros. Victory's Carol.

Mary Ellen Deaven claimed three of the four champion titles in the Ayrshire runoffs. Her senior two year old, Laneway Amigo's Lovely, snagged the champion title, over reserve champion Seven-Oaks Olympic Celene, a three year old. The champion took champion honors at both South Mountain and Shippensburg, and was reserve supreme at South Mountain as well. Intermediate yearling Wentworth Farm Benef. Melanie was chosen the junior champion. Reserve junior honors went to Ray Knoll Farm, with their senior calf Ray-Knoll Jeremy's Brittany.

Glenn Crowl's homebred senior two year old, Joy-el Anchorman Kit, took Brown Swiss champion honors, over his brother Gary's reserve champion three year old Joy-el Jubilation Jan. The winning heifer, milking her first lactation, is projected to finish with 12,000. Swiss junior champion winner was White-Oak-Vu Farm, exhibiting the intermediate calf Foust Hill Jeff Panda. Kelly Jo Myers took reserve junior honors with her summer yearling Welsh Ponderosa Prancer Jodi.

Milking shorthorn honors all went to Airville exhibitor Gary Crowl. Grand champion was the four-year-old Joyel Pacesetter Melody, over reserve winner Joy-el Pacesetter Tommy P, a three year old. Junior champion was Joyel Euke Tabby, a junior calf, over the reserve winner, Spruce Hill GP Darlene, a senior calf.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

- New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
- 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
- Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability Our studies have shown that 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows·

*5 yr - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 ry - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and carles a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.
* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450 00
We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200 00

BEILER ENGINE SERVICE

This twin 20 hp is becoming very popular for hay balers and other applications traditionally equipped with 2 cylinder Wisc. engines and can also replace the older 4 cylinder engines on some applications.

This engine has been in use on hay balers for over 10 years and is doing a very good job. We can also mount Wisc. clutches or reductions on it for some applications. Fuel efficiency is very good.

Buy now while we still have this heavy duty engine. New model coming next year.

MAXIMIZER™ COMBINES DELIVER ON THEIR PROMISE. EVEN WHEN CONDITIONS AREN'T PROMISING

"Bigger capacity. Cleaner grain and more of it." That's what new-technology Maximizer combines promise. And they deliver in all harvest conditions—good, bad and indifferent.

Threshing capacity is thorough and gentle with a larger slower-speed cylinder and large concave area. Samples are cleaner, thanks to the Quadra-Flo™ system with its precleaner, four high velocity fans, chaffer and sieve.

Stop in. You'll see that the total feature combination, along with traditional John Deere reliability and dealer service, gives you more reason than ever to go Maximizer. That's a promise.

IN STOCK, READY TO GO! A MAXIMIZER WITH THE HORSEPOWER YOU NEED.

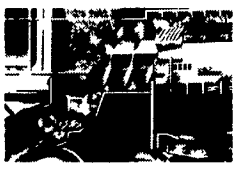
MF TRACTOR & COMBINE HEADQUARTERS

Announcing the M-F 8570 Rotary

DELIVERING THE ULTIMATE IN COMBINE PERFORMANCE.

The new M-F 8570 rotary combine is the most technologically advanced rotary combine on the market

- Multiple passes, plus radial acceleration and centrifugal forces from the rotor, increase grain separating efficiency to harvest more grain with less crop damage
- Exclusive rotor feed system evens-out and propels the crop to start it on its spiral path through the threshing process
- Patented direct-discharge design eliminates the need for a power-consuming rear beater



- Simplicity of design, with fewer moving parts, ensures greater efficiency and reliability, with lower maintenance and operating costs

Rear-mounted Cummins diesel engine, environmentally controlled comfort-cab (positioned on the left side for better visibility) and M-F grain headers built for years of dependable use round out the list of reasons to take a look at the new M-F 8570 rotary combine

Over the years, M-F combines have become the preferred choice of some of the world's most demanding customers. And now Massey-Ferguson is the only company in North America committed to giving you a choice of conventional or rotary combine technology

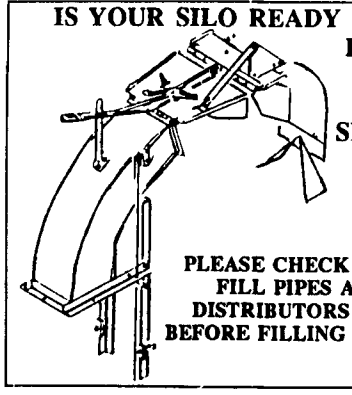
IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH CORN SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

FORAGES AND ROUGHAGES FOR DAIRY

It is well known that milk cows must be fed adequate amounts of good quality forage in order to produce at high levels, maintain normal milk composition, and maintain good health.

Roughages can replace a portion of the forage in a normal ration. Roughages differ from forages. Roughage ingredients, such as cottonseed hulls, peanut hulls, and rice hulls can be used to help meet the ADF/NDF requirement of milk cows. Although these processed roughage ingredients do not stimulate as much chewing activity as long forages, they are valuable in helping to promote optimum rumen conditions for normal digestion.

Cows should spend 11 to 12 hours per day chewing. This will promote normal flow of saliva to the gastrointestinal tract. A mature dairy cow can secrete and swallow 400 pounds (48 gallons) of saliva daily. This volume of saliva will contain 3.25 pounds of buffering salts, naturally produced by the salivary glands. Saliva, and its buffering actions, help maintain normal rumen fermentation.

Purina Roughage Extenders and Milking Chow BIR's are formulated to provide energy, protein, minerals and vitamins, and roughage. If you need to stretch your supply of forages, please ask us about these unique products.
